Flying to Meet Katanga Leader In Peace Bid

NDOLA, Northern Rhodesia (Reuters)—Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold of the United Nations was killed today when a plane bringing him here from Leopoldville crashed into the African bush.

SEVERAL EXPLOSIONS —SURVIVOR

NDOLA, Northern Rhodesia (UPI)—The only survivor of the plane crash in which Dag Hammarskjold died said tonight there were several explosions aboard the plane before it crashed. The UN secretary-general had changed his mind about wanting to land at Ndola, the survivor, a UN security guard, said, and just before the scheduled landing at Ndola told the pilot to change course.

France Won't Discuss Berlin With Russians

NEW YORK (AP)—The French government has told the United States it will not participate in any allied conference with the Soviet Union on Berlin and Germany under present circumstances, the New York Times says today.

It is understood, a Washington dispatch to The Times adds, that this message was conveyed to President Kennedy personally in the presence of the British and West German foreign ministers by French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville last Friday.

They also say Couve de Murville told the Allied leaders his government believed the Soviet Union is trying to impose its own solution of the German problem on the West.

He said it could be stopped from doing so not by proposing a four-power conference but by warning Moscow any attempt to interfere with the West's rights and obligations to supply the military and civilian population of Berlin would lead to war.

IRISH HELD

New Battle In Congo

USUMBURA, Ruanda-Urundi (AP)—Private radio messages said fighting broke out today between United Nations and Katanga forces in Albertville, on Lake Tanganyika northeast of Elisabethville.

This would expand a five-day war previously waged at three cities along a line through the heart of the rebellious province of the Congo—Elisabethville, Jadotville and Kamina.

Katanga sources reported the action erupted near the Albertville railway station between Katanga gendarmes (police) and members of an Indian UN garrison which totals about 1,400 men.

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—A Company of Irish troops held prisoner at Jadotville, 75 miles northwest of Elisabethville, is being treated well by its Katanga captors, a United Nations spokesman said today in this Congo capital.

DUBLIN (AP)—Ireland was plunged anew into anxious foreboding today as reports that Irish troops had been overwhelmed in Katanga.

The report, flashed to Dublin from Leopoldville Sunday night, dashed the rejoicing that set in earlier Sunday after a government announcement said it had been informed that a truce had been arranged in Jadotville and that Irish casualties were light.

Quebec's Attitude 'Incredible'

OTTAWA (UPI)—Health Minister J. Waldo Monteith today described as "almost incredible" Quebec Premier Jean Lesage's refusal to co-operate with the federally-appointed Royal Commission on Health Services.

Lesage based his refusal on charges that the commission infringes on provincial rights.

Monteith, speaking to the Eastern Ontario Dental Association, said the commission's terms of reference made it absolutely clear that the federal government recognized provincial rights in the health field. This same recognition was the basis for such programs as the national hospital insurance plan and national health grants, he said.

Monteith told the dentists at a luncheon that, in studying the commission's recommendations, the federal government would work from the basic premise that the patient-doctor relationship must be preserved.

NEXT LICKS BY FULTON?

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—The Chamber of Commerce here has invited Justice Minister Fulton to explain the federal government's stand in the Columbia River power controversy.

The chamber wired its invitation to Mr. Fulton today after Premier Bennett of British Columbia challenged Mr. Fulton Saturday to "leave the protection of Eastern Canada and come to Prince George and see the same things he has been saying there about the Peace."

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today there has been no change in the government's policy on power development of the Columbia River.

He was replying in the Commons to Opposition Leader Pearson and asked whether there were any grounds for a reported statement by Premier Bennett of British Columbia that Ottawa would "give in" to the province and permit the export of Columbia River power.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the federal government's policy had been announced on a number of occasions and there was no change in it.

OTTAWA POWER POLICY CALLOUS—BENNETT

'B.C. Won't Stand for Sellout'

(See Also Page 17)
Premier Bennett denounced the Columbia River power treaty and federal Justice Minister E. Davie Fulton in a fiery speech at Prince George Saturday night.

In a speech to the convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of B.C. he said the treaty with the U.S. is "not good enough" but "can be made to work" if B.C. is allowed to sell all its downstream benefits to pay for construction of the three big dams.

He challenged Mr. Fulton's claim that these benefits if returned to B.C. would be the cheapest of all power.

Mr. Fulton has said this power will cost 3.77 mills; Mr.

Bennett claimed it would cost an average of 6.35 mills, and as much as 8.65 mills during the project's first year.

In a personal attack on the justice minister, the premier said Mr. Fulton was trying to block full economic development of B.C. "for the honor of his own grandiose political image."

"He will allow nothing to interfere with his own lust for political back-slapping," said Mr. Bennett.

Mr. Fulton hinted in Ottawa last week that the federal government was considering ways to block the Peace River power project, which has already been launched by the new publicly-owned B.C. Electric.

This might be done under the federal Navigable Waters Protection Act, he suggested.

Replied Mr. Bennett: "I say to everybody in Canada in all seriousness that this may rank as the most frivolous, destructive statement ever made in Canada's long political history."

The premier disclosed that next stage in construction of

Gave 'Selfless Best' PM Tells Commons

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today the death of Dag Hammarskjold is a "tragic day" in the history of efforts to maintain world peace.

There was a gasp on the Commons floor and in the galleries when Mr. Diefenbaker said the death of Mr. Hammarskjold is "shocking and tragic news."

The prime minister said Mr. Hammarskjold had given his "selfless best" in the preservation of peace.

Opposition Leader Pearson said he had known Mr. Hammarskjold well for many years and had worked closely with him in the UN.

Centenary on 'Wheels'

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker moved today to set up the machinery for Canada's centennial celebrations in 1967.

He introduced a resolution calling for the establishment of a 10-man national centennial administration and a 61-member national conference to co-ordinate activities and sound out various views.

He also told the House of Commons he would like to see a "national train" which would travel across the country carrying historical documents.

Three-Party Gov't Plan Rejected

Today at a press conference Adenauer made it clear that he favors a coalition with the Free Democrats. He rejected a suggestion by Brandt for a government made up of the representatives of all three parties.

An all-party coalition "is not in keeping with the democratic feelings of our time," he said.

Both the Socialists and the Free Democrats gained five per cent in popular vote, taking their new strength from Adenauer's party and minor parties which lost heavily.

The official provisional standing in the Bundestag (lower House) with two seats still to be contested was: Christian Democrat Party, 241; Social Democrats, 190; and Free Democrats, 66.

The standing in the previous Bundestag with two fewer seats was: Christian Democrats, 241; Social Democrats, 168, and smaller parties the rest.

The Free Democrats called for a new government under Erhard.

Both Brandt's Socialists and the Free Democrats are against Adenauer's continuing as chancellor.

They say they will refuse to enter a coalition until he retires. If they force him out, his successor may be Ludwig Erhard, the economics expert whose private enterprise policies have made West Germany Europe's most powerful industrial nation.

COLUMBIA HYDRO HEARINGS OPEN

REVELSTOKE (CP)—Dr. Hugh Keenleyside, chairman of the B.C. Power Commission, said here today the Columbia River hydro scheme would produce the world's cheapest electricity.

He was speaking at the opening of public hearings on the commission's application for water rights to build the Mica Dam, one of three proposed in the 458,000,000 power project.

The Mica Dam, biggest of the three, would affect only 20 property owners, Dr. Keenleyside said. He said power from the 620-foot high rockfill dam would attract new industry and also spark tourism in the area of Revelstoke, 270 miles north-east of Vancouver.

failed to arrive at Ndola as scheduled on a flight from Leopoldville.

Hammarskjold, 56, was headed here for talks with Katanga President Moise Tshombe on ways of ending the fighting between United Nations and Katanga troops in the neighboring province of the Congo.

TOP ADVISER

UN officials said Hammarskjold's top adviser on African affairs, Henrik Wieselhoff, his American aide, Capt. William Ranallo; and another U.S. official, Vladimir Fabri, were on the ill-fated plane.

Hammarskjold had been due to arrive here late Sunday night after the flight of more than 1,000 miles from Leopoldville.

His plane was reported to have circled the Ndola airport twice shortly after midnight before flying off again. A police official at the airport said the pilot did not want to make a night landing and had headed back to Leopoldville, planning to return today.

BEGIN SEARCH

When no further word came from the plane, the search for Hammarskjold began.

Rhodesian planes were ordered out from Salisbury, the federal capital, and U.S. planes joined in the hunt from Leopoldville, where Hammarskjold had been before arranging the peace talks, with Tshombe.

The plane was fitted with the latest radar equipment and could have landed on any airstrip without ground assistance.

Hammarskjold took off in the DC-6B used by the UN military force commander, named the Albatross.

Piloted by the chief Swed is UN pilot Capt. Hallonquist, it was damaged by machine-gun fire as it took off from Elisabethville, the Katanga capital, Friday.

An hour before the Albatross took off British undersecretary of state for foreign affairs, Lord Lansdowne, took off in another plane, also bound for Ndola. The British diplomat reached Ndola to make arrangements for the Tshombe-Hammarskjold meeting.

SENDS MESSAGE

Hammarskjold flew off after sending a message to Tshombe saying a cease-fire order would have to be interpreted as not affecting the status quo, which would be maintained in its entirety during the whole period in which an agreement was being sought.

The United Nations published Tshombe's terms for a Katanga cease-fire which reached the secretary-general Sunday through the British consul in Elisabethville.

Tshombe wanted UN troops to be confined to their camp and all movements of UN troops and reinforcements halted.

Tshombe agreed to go to Ndola and requested an aircraft for that purpose.

Hammarskjold replied that he found it impossible to accept Tshombe's conditions for a cease-fire and a meeting which had been communicated to him.

The only question under the present circumstances, said Hammarskjold, was a cease-fire without conditions on either side and an agreement to meet.

The fighting in Katanga broke out shortly before Hammarskjold arrived in Leopoldville last week.

As the situation in the mineral-rich Congo province deteriorated, with strong Katanga resistance to UN efforts to make it rejoin the central government, Hammarskjold decided to take a personal hand.

Instead of flying back to New York as scheduled, he arranged to go to Ndola to meet Tshombe on neutral territory.

This was the most tragic blow of its kind to the UN executive staff since Count Folke Bernadotte, Palestine truce commissioner, was shot dead on a Jerusalem street 13 years ago—Sept. 17, 1948.

Bernadotte, like Hammarskjold, was Swedish.

uted his party's gains to the fact that "we rejected Adenauer as leader of a government with which we would go into coalition. . . . That helped us."

If the Christian Democrats and Free Democrats join in forming a new government, there could be some minor changes in foreign policy, but little change domestically.

FAVOR FEELERS

The Free Democrats see West Germany as caught between East and West. They believe the country should remain bound to the Western alliance, but at the same time favor feelers toward the Communist world.

In any case, the new government will have to make quick decisions in foreign policy. Critical Western decisions have been held up by the uncertainty of the outcome of the election. It had been no secret that the United States, Britain and France did not wish to do anything about Germany's future that would jeopardize Adenauer's chances.

Anxiety about the Berlin situation—and perhaps some lack of confidence in Adenauer himself—may have accounted for the popular switch from the Christian Democrats.

Brandt won many friends by his strong stand against the Russians when the Soviets ran a wall through Berlin Aug. 13. The Free Democrats also may have won votes from Germans who feel negotiating with the Russians is the only way to avert nuclear war.

STATES PLANS

If a coalition does not come about, Brandt said, he would continue to serve as mayor of West Berlin.

Official preliminary returns from all election districts gave these popular vote results:

Christian Democrats: 44,238,984 or 45.3 per cent, compared to 50.1 per cent in 1957.

Social Democrats: 11,406,253 or 36.3 per cent compared with 31.8 per cent in 1957.

Free Democrats: 4,009,988 or 12.75 per cent, compared to 7.7 per cent in 1957.

The remaining votes went to splinter parties.

Adenauer himself was re-elected by a commanding majority in his own district of Bonn. But some of his lieutenants suffered at the hands of the Socialists.

Foreign Minister Heinrich von Brentano barely managed to squeak back to his parliamentary seat and Adenauer's press chief, Felix von Eckhart, was defeated in his first try for a seat in north Germany.

DIEFENBAKER 66 TODAY

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker celebrated his 66th birthday today by pronouncing himself ready for "lengthy and continued service."

He made the statement in the Commons in response to opposition tributes that included jibes about an "early rest" for him.

Diefenbaker entered the Commons this morning to find a large bowl of blue and white flowers on his desk. The oral tributes came from Opposition Leader Lester B. Pearson and CCF spokesman H. W. Herd.

New Russia A-Test

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Soviet Union today exploded its 13th nuclear shot in the atmosphere since Sept. 1, the Atomic Energy Commission reported. The Russian device had the power "on the border of a megaton yield," the AEC said. This would be an explosion about the strength of one million tons of TNT.

The uncommitted countries have not in general backed the Soviet demand for the troika formula.

SECURITY COUNCIL

Union and the United States.

The crisis was coming in any event, but Hammarskjold's death advanced it by at least a full year.

Hammarskjold's second five-year term of office was to expire in April 1963. That meant that the matter of his successor would have arisen in the 17th General Assembly session next year.

To produce a successor the Security Council would have to agree on a candidate and recommend him to the assembly.

A crisis was more or less certain since the five permanent council members, including the U.S.S.R. and the United States, have veto power.

Premier Khrushchev declared war on Hammarskjold last year, principally because of Moscow's anger at the way the UN chief handled the Congo crisis.

Just a year ago Khrushchev launched a furious attack on Hammarskjold and demanded his replacement by a "troika"—a three-man board made up of one Communist, one Westerner and one neutral, each with a veto.

The crisis is all the more deep because there has been no provision for a line of succession.

The United Nations already faces serious budget deficits. In the eyes of many uncommitted countries it is being weakened not only by the Soviet bloc but also by France's attitude over Tunisia and Algeria and by alleged British obstructionism in the Congo operation.

Recent assessments of Soviet policies indicate that Moscow is unlikely to give up its insistence on the three-member or "Troika" formula.

WIDENS DEMANDS

In fact, Moscow has extended demands for this formula to other bodies, such as an international control organization to supervise a nuclear test ban.

The West categorically rejects the troika formula, saying it would give the Communist bloc a veto on all executive action.

'Issue of War or Peace' At Stake in Berlin Talks

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—State Secretary Dean Rusk will try to find out from Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko here this week whether Russia is ready to negotiate on a compromise settlement of the Berlin crisis or intends to press its demands at increasing risk of war.

High Western diplomats said the fateful issue of war or peace has seldom been more starkly presented in modern diplomacy than it will be in the impending United States-Soviet talks.

Rusk came to New York from Washington Sunday night, following a three-day policy conference with the foreign ministers of Britain, France and West Germany. He said he wants to know from Gromyko whether there is a basis for serious negotiations on the questions raised by the Soviet Union in the past months.

On leaving Washington he had expressed cautious optimism about the outcome of his mission, saying "I think it is important to be optimistic until things prove otherwise."

Gromyko, who reached New York by plane Saturday night, would not say whether he was optimistic or pessimistic. He commented: "We'll see each other, we'll meet, and we'll talk."

TO ATTEND UN

Both men are here to attend the UN General Assembly session opening Tuesday. Rusk said they would "probably be seeing each other" at that time.

Rusk is expected to tell Gromyko that the United States and its allies will not tolerate interference with aircraft flying in the corridors to West Berlin across East German territory. There were several instances last week of Soviet fighter craft buzzing civilian airliners.

He also plans to advise Gromyko that the Western powers will not negotiate with Russia on peace treaties with a divided Germany or on the terms of a separate peace treaty with East Germany. At the conference in Washington last week the Western foreign ministers decided that any negotiations must be on much broader terms than those proposed by Premier Khrushchev.

Khrushchev has proposed separate peace settlements with East and West Germany, as opposed to the long-standing Western insistence on German unification. Failing Western agreement Khrushchev has said he will make a separate peace treaty with East Germany which, he claims, would give the German Red regime control of all Western supply lines to Berlin.

'Solution Possible'

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Western big four foreign ministers have authorized State Secretary Rusk "to ascertain if there exists a reasonable basis for negotiations with the Soviet Union" on the Berlin crisis.

Speaking in a 200-word communique at the windup of a three-day strategy conference Saturday, the Western policy-shapers "agreed that a peaceful solution to the problem of Germany and Berlin can be achieved if both sides are prepared to undertake discussions which take account of the rights and interests of all concerned."

Rusk and the other foreign affairs chiefs—Britain's Lord Home, France's Couve de Mur-ville and West Germany's Von Brentano—agreed also on counter-measures to be taken against further possible pressures on Communist-encircled West Berlin.

The counter-measures were not spelled out in the brief communique.

Electra Crashes on Takeoff; 37 Die

CHICAGO (AP)—"No control."

These frantic last words from a plunging Northwest Airlines Electra provided a major clue for investigators seeking the cause of a crash Sunday that killed 37 persons including two Canadians.

All 32 passengers and the crew of five died as the Florida-bound plane hit a high-tension wire, smashed into a muddy field southwest of O'Hare International Airport within a minute after takeoff, disintegrated and burned.

Among the dead were a mother and her four young children. Their war veteran father watched in horror as the plane blew apart, spewing bodies over a wide area.

The Electra crash was the second major air disaster in the Chicago area this month. Sept. 1, a Trans World Airlines Constellation crashed near suburban Hinsdale minutes after its departure from Midway Airport. Seventy-eight persons died in that accident.

RECORDS FINAL WORDS

The final words from the Electra—"no control"—as it spun to earth from a height estimated variously at 200 to 300 feet were recorded at the O'Hare control tower.

Other words from the pilot or co-pilot of the doomed plane were drowned out by the message of another pilot calling the control tower.

Federal investigators said the two words indicated the pilot had lost control of the big aircraft. They said the tape recording could be of considerable use in solving the cause of the accident.

Attempts will be made to separate messages on the recording.

DOUBTS SABOTAGE

Allan Boyd, chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board, said that "so far as we know, there were no malfunctions" in the Electra before it crashed. Federal investigator Halaby said: "There is no reason to believe there was any explosion within the aircraft that would be the result of a bomb or sabotage."

The Canadians killed were Stanley Schnare of Abbotsford, B.C., and George Peck, formerly of Kitchener, Ont.

Schnare, a semi-retired businessman in his mid-40s, left

Vancouver Saturday on a business trip. He is survived by his wife and two teen-aged daughters.

Peck, 67, who was born in Kitchener and became a naturalized U.S. citizen, wrote a weekly column, The American Way, which appeared in more than 4,000 weekly newspapers in Canada and the United States.

In 1953, Peck moved his operation, George Peck and Associates, to Largo, Fla., on the west coast of the state.

The Northwest Airlines flight originated in Milwaukee, Wis. It was bound for Tampa, Fort Lauderdale and Miami, Fla., with a stop at Chicago.

Russia to End A-Tests Before Opening of UN?

By The Canadian Press

The United States has fired the second nuclear blast of its renewed underground tests while the Russians pushed the total in their current series to 12 with two more blasts in the atmosphere.

As the great powers banged away with nuclear tests, thousands of Britons demonstrated their opposition to use of nuclear weapons. (See page 28.)

The U.S. air force shot another Discoverer satellite—the 31st in the series—into orbit from the Vandenberg Air Force Base, Calif. It will attempt within four days to recover it in the air over the Pacific. A key experiment is the placing of human cells in the capsule for testing after orbit for the effect of exposure to space radiation.

MAKES PREDICTION

Announcement of the two Russian nuclear tests came after Senator Hubert Humphrey predicted Russia would wind up its present series before the United Nations meets Tuesday and then offer to accept a test ban.

Humphrey, assistant Senate Democratic leader from Minnesota, urged in an interview that the United States beat the Russians to the punch by offering its own proposal to halt nuclear tests at a fixed date.

The U.S. blast Saturday took place underground at the Atomic Energy Commission's test site in Nevada. It was described as a low-yield device, equivalent to the force of 20,000 tons of TNT or less—that produced no fallout.

The Russian test Saturday was in the atmosphere at Novaya Zemlya, an island in the Arctic Ocean. The AEC said it was in the order of a megaton, equivalent to 1,000,000 tons of TNT.

The Soviet blast Sunday, also in the atmosphere, took place in the vicinity of Semipalatinsk in central Russia. The AEC said it was of intermediate strength, defined as ranging from the equivalent of 20,000 tons of TNT to less than a megaton.

Russian explosions have come almost daily since Sept. 1 when Russia ended the three-year moratorium on nuclear tests. Four tests have been in the megaton class.

Both blasts since the United States resumed testing last Friday have been low-yield devices.

First, the Facts

AS CANADIANS CONSIDER A national health insurance scheme they could profitably read a dispatch from London published in this newspaper the other day. It shows that Britain's experience in this field of social service offers some useful warnings to Canada.

Thirteen years ago, when a Labor government established the British health insurance system its annual cost looked fairly modest. Today it is costing $2,420,000,000 a year, or more than double the original estimate.

Canada, we believe, will set up an insurance scheme before long but surely by learning from Britain's mathematical errors this country can escape them.

To begin with, it is an error to regard health insurance as a kind of fixed commodity which a nation decides to buy, or not buy. In fact, the words "health insurance" can mean almost anything. What services does the state intend to provide? How are they to be provided and how are they to be paid for? What will be the relationship between the patient and the doctor, between the doctor and the state?

These and many other questions have to be settled before Canada embarks on national health insurance. The federal government, we think, was wise to set up a royal commission which is now considering all the possible alternatives, their effects and their costs, so far as they can be reckoned in advance.

Grounds for Two Protests

MAYOR SCURRAH HAS reason to challenge the preliminary census figures which purport to show a decrease in Victoria's population.

The mayor points to the steady increase in construction of homes, multiple family dwellings and apartments and the rise in the number of children going to school.

It is difficult to conceive a shrinking population in the light of these indices of growth.

But while further investigation of the city total is justified, the development in the metropolitan area and on the peninsula reflects a vigor that cannot be questioned.

The population from the Strait of Juan de Fuca to Satellite Channel has jumped roughly 13 per cent in five years. We have now an overall total of 150,760 people, according to the preliminary figures. This means a substantially larger market for merchants, and greater significance in the commercial world.

We have not achieved the same rate of growth as the Vancouver

Presumably the commission will present a series of different schemes and tell the government what each of them would cost. Then, and not before, the government will be in a position to decide between them, frame a policy and, no doubt, ask the provinces to finance at least part of it, as they finance part of the present hospital insurance scheme.

That is the proper way to approach what is not some minor project but possibly the largest and most costly social experiment in Canada's history. The Canadian people, we believe, desire some scheme of health insurance but they are entitled to know in advance what benefits it will provide, what it will cost them in taxes, premiums or both and how the money is to be collected.

The immediate task is to calculate all these figures, insofar as such things can ever be calculated, and until the calculations are complete our politicians of all parties will be unwise and irresponsible if, for electoral purposes, they try to hurry us into a gigantic collective enterprise, without knowing what we are doing.

Since all parties apparently support it in principle, health insurance has ceased to be a political issue. What we need, and what Britain did not have in advance, are the facts. By getting them, and acting on them, we should be able to avoid at least the worst of Britain's financial miscalculations.

metropolitan area—now nicely over the three-quarter million mark—which expanded by about 17 per cent in the same period. On the other hand the figures very probably justify a recent statement placing Victoria fifth among Canadian cities in the rate of percentage population increase.

Such computations, of course, cover Greater Victoria, not the city alone.

This offers small comfort to Mayor Scurrah, when he is informed that Victoria itself is receding. And, because of the financial considerations involved, he has every right—in fact it is his duty—to protest and ask for a check.

But with or without correction, if it is necessary, the preliminary figures once again underline a problem confronting this community. We are being misrepresented, and to our great disadvantage, if statistical books give the impression that there are less than 54,000 people living in the area, where the population runs to nearly three times that number.

Maybe It's Bliss, at That

MUCH EARLIER IN THE CENTURY, somebody on this continent coined the kidding slogan "Catch 'em young, treat 'em rough, and tell 'em nothing." That, in the joke, was the advice given by the man who wanted to stay on top, above any up-and-coming competition.

It was accorded as much credence as the advice to the bridegroom: Take away her shoes and she can't get about.

It comes as something of a shock to find the former slogan an operating principle in at least one part of the world.

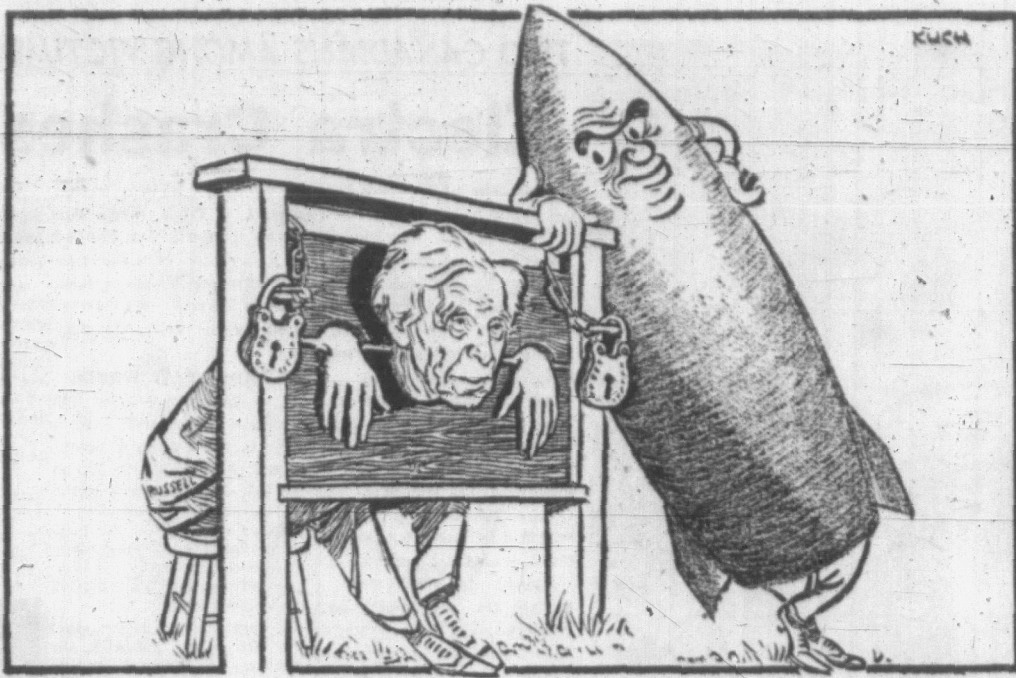

According to recent report, the people of Malanga, a picturesque village in the beautiful Kulu region of north India, are wholly illiterate and kept that way on purpose.

The temple oracle, presumably the chief temple priest, has convinced them that "education is a sin." His purpose, it seems, is to protect his position as ruler whose privileges might be limited if the people were better informed.

Isolated, unable to read or write, lacking means of communicating with the outside world, they are in no position to question the oracle.

He's staying on top—and his people, at least, aren't taking tranquilizers to quiet their cold war nerves.

A Time of Rest and Recuperation for All

By B. A. TOBIN

SOME of the gardening experts are now issuing their advice on what to do for the approaching winter. It is a time, they say, of preparation for the long sleep (plants, that is). And there are a few precautions that the gardener must take to enable his tame flora to enjoy a good nap. There is cleaning up to do, a little clipping here and there, a little thinning out, a little rearrangement of this and that—all designed to let the plants and shrubs have a good long rest period.

Tobin rearrangement of this and that—all designed to let the plants and shrubs have a good long rest period.

O Solitude

Now, of course, everyone knows that the best thing to encourage a nice sleep is to be left alone. If people just go away and leave you in peace, you should have no trouble in getting your rest.

That's the humane treatment I think gardens should be given.

And that's what I give them. Through all the long, lazy summer days you have left the garden alone so that it can produce its best, undisturbed by human interference. And now through all the long, lazy winter days you do the same.

After all, that's only fair. Does a garden bother you in the winter? Of course not. Then why not treat it with equal consideration?

Now Is the Hour

But of course this doesn't mean that preparations need not be made. And now is the time when these must be begun.

One of the finest preparations I know of for winter gardening is to join a library or book-of-the-month club. This will enable you to fill in the winter evenings and such afternoons as you have available, while still not causing annoyance or distress to the sleeping garden.

Another excellent gardening preparation is to buy a pair of comfortable house slippers. Some experienced gardeners have their favorite easy chair or chaise longue done over, ready for long hours of winter work. Others go through their magazine subscriptions thoroughly, weeding out those not wanted, discarding the less worthy ones, and renewing preferred species. This ensures a comfortable and rewarding winter season.

Some enthusiasts, of course, prefer to take a still more active interest in the garden. One, I am told, managed to keep up an exciting preoccupation with his orchard all winter long. It seems that he had harvested a nice crop of apples, which he proceeded to render into cider. I understand that the results of this aspect of orcharding accounted for his entire interest and most of his spare time right up until late spring.

This sort of dedication, however, is not for the novice. The latter must be content with a less consuming attention to his garden during the winter, never forgetting, naturally, that the prime consideration is that it must be permitted to get the full value from its rest period.

It may be that on many an occasion the impatient gardener will be tempted to grab up a tool—shovel, hoe, spade, or what-have-you—and rush out into the winter air determined on active intervention, as the militarists say. This urge must be firmly resisted.

Counter-Inaction

If necessary the gardener concerned should force himself to lie down quietly in some comfortable spot until the compulsion passes. A mail-and-hops sedative, a new novel or even a hash at the TV may be sufficient to do the trick. In extreme cases a brisk turn or two around the dining room table may be required.

But the garden must come first. No thought of personal preference, no consideration of individual whim, must be permitted to threaten intrusion on the garden's peaceful winter slumber.

And the thoughtful gardener may go further. One I know (ahem) began well ahead in the summer to treat his garden with this sympathetic consideration and restraint. The result is that his garden is already well into its restful winter slumber. A good deal of it, in fact, is dead.

An Eastern View of Us

(Financial Editor David Grenier, in the Toronto Telegram.)

THEY say a good credit rating is worth more than a family tree. That's something Premier Bennett might have stopped to ponder before initiating last month's takeover of B.C. Electric.

If he had, he might have found a more equitable way of doing it than riding roughshod over investors' rights. Thereby, he might have saved himself some grief—and the taxpayers of the province some money.

The way things are right now, people can find better, safer places to invest their money than in a province where they risk having civil liberties and property rights denied (and I'm only paraphrasing a resolution passed last week by the Canadian Bar Association).

Political uncertainty, the risk of expropriation without recourse to the courts: these are two factors that will help determine how much it costs the province to borrow money in the future.

My guess is it's going to make it more expensive than it need have been if Premier Bennett had played fair with B.C. Electric shareholders. A government with a poor credit rating is almost as handicapped as a housewife without a charge account.

There's some unintentional irony in the situation resulting from the takeover. Because of the takeover, the people of the province have inherited $683 million of indebtedness.

Far from being debt-free, as Premier Bennett once boasted, the people of B.C. are now carrying more debt per head than the people of any other province. Only they call it "contingent liabilities."

Here's something else to think about. If Premier Bennett is serious about his plan to develop Peace River power, it's going to require a $630-million investment. Even for the Columbia development, the province will have to put up roughly $286 million (Ottawa has promised to pick up $172 million of the total $458 million).

This is the way one observer, the Value Line investment survey, now appraises the situation:

"British Columbia's credit is sorely strained," it says. "It will probably be difficult for B.C. to raise the funds needed for the Columbia project, let alone the larger capital needed to harness the Peace."

It only goes to show the value of a good credit rating.

Discipline of the Mind

Dr. Bourdillon's articles on education are both thought-provoking and stimulating but one cannot help feeling if some of his statements were taken out of context they might be highly misleading. Particular reference is made to his contention that dead languages, archaic literature, and related subjects have no place in today's nuclear world.

Such a hygienic system of education might be very salutiferous but somehow it will have lost its flavor. The discipline of the mind is not restricted to clinically approved processes however desirable and if we were to pursue this insidious type of infiltration to its logical end the result would be a society of intellectual zombies smothered in a cocoon of sterile security. The mind was meant to soar on spiritual wings not to huddle around on the crutch of scientific insularity.

As man continues to let the world slip through his fingers he must search for some way to prevent this gradual sapping of moral strength. It is far better to sacrifice some of our material gains than to forsake our spiritual heritage.

"CONCERNED."

Police Courtesy

I would like to express my appreciation to the police officers and chiefs of Victoria, Central Saanich and Saanich police forces.

On two occasions just recently I was stopped for violations, which were entirely my own fault, and of both, I was blissfully unaware until they were brought to my attention.

The courtesy of these men, and chiefs, in the carrying out of their duties and the sense of fair-play and understanding is most gratifying.

I am proud to have men like these looking after our interest and welfare, in our municipalities and fair city.

Hats off to the police forces.

Not That Nancy Hanks

An apt question in Wednesday's "Ask the Times": Who is, or was, Nancy Hanks?—The answer obvious to all who read it.

Why in thunderation do we have to have Lincoln's mother in Gordon Head?

—ROBERTA DICKINSON

And Family.

(Editor's Note: "Ask the Times" was correct in answering the question "Who was Nancy Hanks?" by saying she was Lincoln's mother. However, the street in question was not named after the lady but after a harness racer that was named after her. It appears that in the early 1900s a race course was planned for that part of Gordon Head. A number of new streets were named after race horses, and Nancy Hanks was a famous trotter of the day.)

Golden Days of Dawson

In a recent issue of your paper, there appeared a story of Dawson City and the Klondyke—so full of inaccuracy and exaggeration that it is a gem of its kind.

The statement that Dawson City was a "metropolis of thirty thousand people" is just imagination—never, at any time, did it exceed eight thousand. The population of the territory, including the creeks was twenty-five thousand.

Much has been written about the terrors and dangers of the Klondyke and the White Pass but when we consider the number of misfits who did not know how to make camp or look after themselves, it is a wonder there were not more casualties.

When I looked at the White Pass in the spring of 1899 I was amazed, after all the stories, to see a good trail up the mountainside but packing fifty to eighty pounds and making many trips up that steep mountainside, in the snow, was a heart-breaker.

Most of the books and stories of the Klondyke were written by people who never saw Dawson City in its palmy days and that goes for Service too.

I went to Dawson City, in the spring of 1899, with a Bank of Commerce party as assayer. From Bennett, down the lakes, in Peterborough canoes to White Horse was a glorious trip.

Upon arrival at Dawson, we saw seven tons of gold dust in 500 oz. pokes, tier upon tier, on the floor of the vault. In the article mentioned above, the years '98 and '99 were stressed as the only big producing years but up to 1902 all were good years.

Machinery, boilers, steam thawing points, hoists were not in general use until late 1899.

Musicians, singers, vaudeville artists, glamor girls arrived in '99 and Dawson City, very far away from the outside world, hummed with abandon.

Does Western Policy Really Deserve to Be Cast Into Outer Darkness by Lord Russell?

THE arrest and imprisonment of Lord Bertrand Russell and his wife, for protesting against nuclear tests, have served to dramatize the whole confused issue now before world opinion. It seemed shocking and inexcusable to American officials that a London magistrate should have sentenced Lord Russell to jail for the offence of planning to obstruct traffic when Lord Russell really was accusing the statesmen of the world of trying to obliterate mankind in nuclear war. If they can think of no other way to gain their ends.

Freedman

There is sympathy here for Lord Russell's personal misfortune and a general belief that the magistrate blundered into a serious error of judgment. But the impression is still more overwhelming that Lord Russell and his followers in the campaign for nuclear disarmament have been guilty of even more inexcusable blunders.

They are not thinking of Lord Russell's belief that it is better to have a Communist world than a nuclear war, as if these hideous choices exhaust the range of policies open to the free governments. Nor are they thinking of Lord Russell's curious belief that dictators who are contemptuous of world opinion will be swayed into a change of policy by a few demonstrations by elderly gentlemen in the streets of London.

What disturbs these Washington officials is the growing evidence that Lord Russell is supported by a large body of public opinion in many countries that sees no moral difference between Mr. Khrushchev and the western leaders such as President Kennedy, Prime Minister Macmillan and Mr. Hugh Gaitskell.

With one sweeping gesture of contempt and condemnation Lord Russell brought all these leaders under his equal censure by fixing them with the blame for policies which can only end in reducing civilization to a charred and savage ruin.

Something must be gravely wrong with the state of the western democracies, as it has been presented to world opinion, if Lord Russell and other high-minded men and women can believe that western statesmanship stands on the same dismal level of moral duplicity now held by Russian policy. This becomes a serious matter when the General Assembly of the United Nations will soon meet to review the tangled history of the disarmament negotiations.

It is unnecessary to agree with every aspect of British and American policy to recognize that it has been moved by very different principles and ideals from those which have guided Russian policy.

When the United States had a monopoly of atomic power, it proposed to turn these weapons over to the United Nations.

This proposal, without precedent in world affairs, was rejected by Russia which preferred to trust its security to the development of its own atomic power rather than look to the protection of the United Nations armed with overwhelming force to vindicate the rule of law.

At the time of the Berlin blockade in 1948-49, the actual invasion of western rights was far greater than anything that has yet taken place in the current crisis; but the world never lived under an oppressive burden of fear because the United States alone had atomic weapons and everyone, including the Russians, knew that the American government would never use them to strike the first lethal blow at the Soviet Union.

Today Russia is also armed with these dreadful weapons and no one can predict with certainty what Mr. Khrushchev will do by design, or what he will do by miscalculation.

There indeed is the real core of fear in the present crisis and it deserves more consideration than it has yet received.

In trying to pass moral judgment on western policy, it is well to take a long and candid look at the negotiations for over three years in Geneva on disarmament.

These negotiations were being conducted under a writ of authority extended by the United Nations. It is fair to say that in the early part of these talks neither side, whether Russia or the western powers, sincerely sought an agreement. Both sides were engaged in an elaborate propaganda exercise. This criticism extends to the Canadian delegation, no less than to the British and French and American and Russian delegations.

But all this changed fundamentally as the destructive power of nuclear weapons steadily increased. The change occurred in the closing months of the Eisenhower administration and resulted in a new approach taken under the joint initiative of the British and American governments.

The Kennedy administration went still further and instructed its chief negotiator, Mr. Arthur Dean, to make many concessions to the Russians so that a workable agreement could be obtained.

The judgment of many scientists could be cited as proof that the western nations at Geneva successfully met every genuine Russian criticism and worked out an agreement, on paper, that would have prevented nuclear tests in the atmosphere for all time; placed all nuclear tests under a system of international control and inspection; and opened the way to general disarmament.

The objections of the Russian scientists were completely removed. But the Russian politicians were not satisfied and they ordered a resumption of tests.

It must now be clear to every honest observer that Russia had been planning these nuclear tests for many months—during the very period in fact in which the negotiations at Geneva seemed to be moving to an agreement. Russia was using the false promise of an agreement as a cover for its nuclear tests, soon to be resumed in the atmosphere at a frightful risk in radioactive fallout.

When faced with this Russian decision, Mr. Kennedy ordered resumption of limited tests underground. It would have been better if he had delayed this decision until the United Nations had a chance to review the entire problem. But can anyone equate Russia's massive tests in the atmosphere with the American tests underground which have no fallout?

They can be equated only if one forgets Russia's provocation in Berlin and its use of nuclear power as a form of blackmail.

Even now the differences between Russian and American policy are fundamental and profound. Mr. Khrushchev talks of negotiation as a form of certifying the gains he has already won in Berlin and East Germany. Mr. Kennedy talks of genuine negotiations in which the rights of the German people will be respected and western rights will no longer be challenged by Soviet power.

He is ready to have Secretary of State Rusk open negotiations with Mr. Gromyko on these points in the hope that enough progress will be made in these preliminary talks to justify a later meeting at the summit with Mr. Khrushchev.

Does western policy really deserve to be cast into the outer darkness by Lord Russell and by those who share his views? These men and women, among the finest in our time, think they are saving the values of civilization by invoking a higher moral law. They are in reality deserting those values by encouraging Russia, which recognizes no moral law at all, to believe that a divided opinion in the western world will make all the easier the Soviet path of conquest and domination.

An Enlarged Heart

People write, much alarmed because their doctors told them that their heart is enlarged. They want to know if the enlargement is going to cripple them, or eventually kill them. Actually, in many cases, an enlargement of the heart is a good thing; it is like the enlargement of the arm muscles of a blacksmith: it was produced by hard work, and it enables the smith to do a better job. Perhaps the person, for years, has had a high blood pressure, and this has made it necessary for his heart to keep pumping harder than it does with a normal pressure.

Alvarez

Under such circumstances, if the heart muscle hadn't enlarged and grown stronger, the person might have become short of breath. In these cases, if with some medicine I could quickly reduce the size of the heart to normal, I wouldn't do it, because that might make the patient worse.

I'll never forget the man of 76 who came in one day because of a little arthritis in his hands. When I examined his chest, I found a large heart and heard an unusually loud murmur, due to a congenital defect that he had been born with. He told me that when he was around 21, the doctor who had discovered this abnormality had become so alarmed he had called in consultation four of the leading physicians in San Francisco. Because, in those days, doctors hadn't yet learned how long some men can live with a big heart and loud murmur, the consultants decided the man soon would be dead. Obviously, they were all wrong, and they all died long before the patient did! Actually, the man told me he had never had trouble with his big heart.

Another man whose story I have never forgotten had what is known as a fibrillating heart, in which the individual muscle fibers in the walls of the upper chambers of the heart keep quivering separately instead of all contracting in unison. Naturally, such a heart is handicapped in doing its work. What taught me a lesson was that this man kept hard at work for a number of years, or as long as I kept in touch with him. He was foreman of a gang that laid heavy sewer pipes, and often, when impatient, he would jump down into the trench and help his men to wrestle a big section of pipe into place. As he said, he wasn't sick; it was his home doctor who was doing all the worrying.

As I write, my mind goes back to a time in 1902, when one of my relatives went to college. When the university physician examined her and found an enlarged heart and a murmur, he said she must not "take gym."

A few years later, when occasionally, she would get very tired, she would have a mild pain in her chest much like that of angina pectoris. But true angina pectoris practically never appears in women under 30; also, this young woman's mother told me she had been having the same type of pain from the time she was in her early twenties. So I didn't get worried. Today the woman is 75 and still has no heart trouble.

This is why I always used to say to my students: "Cultivate the habit of optimism. If you love to hand out death sentences, you are going to have some very embarrassing experiences, as when year after year the patient whom you condemned keeps running around, perhaps with more 'pep' than you have!"

Often I used to tell my students the story kindly old Professor Thayer of Johns Hopkins University used to tell on himself. He said that back around 1905, he tried out on his next-door neighbor, a prominent attorney, the newly-invented instrument for the measurement of blood pressure, which he had just received from Italy. Finding a pressure almost double that which then was supposed to be normal, Thayer became alarmed and told his neighbor that he had better give up his business and prepare for the end. Fortunately, the man refused to be frightened and went on with his work.

Years passed and he refused to die; he would not even become ill. As Dr. Thayer used to say to his students, it was most embarrassing for him because, every morning, he and his neighbor were likely to come out of their front doors about the same time and walk down the street together. Some 25 years later, shortly before Dr. Thayer died, someone asked him what had happened to the man who had so embarrassed him and Thayer said, "You know, the old scamp is still alive and husky. He recently married a second time, and has started to raise a new family!"

Of late, efforts are being made to treat cancers in certain parts of the body by a "regional perfusion" of the part with powerful drugs which tend to kill cancer cells. Let us say that there is a cancer in one leg or thigh. What is done then is to inject into the main artery of that leg or thigh a powerful anti-cancer drug. A much bigger dose can be injected if only part of the body is treated than if all of the body were treated. If all of the body were injected with the drug, the patient might die of it; but if only one extremity is injected he won't die. Sometimes now if there is a cancer of the head or the face or the back of the nose, the head can be injected through the big arteries in the neck. The results are encouraging.

LONDON LETTER

Golden Arrow Goes Electric

LONDON—The Golden Arrow will never quite be the same again. They've gone and switched her from steam to electric, and that's taken much of the glamor out of her.

Whenever I happen to be at Victoria station when the Golden Arrow is about to pull out I always stand and watch, fascinated.

The train itself—with its antiquated 33-year-old Pullman coaches and restaurant cars, tables all set for a meal and the waiters standing by in their neatly crumpled white jackets. Around the train the bustle of English families all excited about their forthcoming fortnight in a South of France villa... students in shorts and with rucksacks off for a hiking tour of Switzerland... the babble of foreign tongues from home-going Italians, French and Belgians... sinister looking Slavic men in long overcoats and black hats whom one feels sure have plans for a new time bomb in their suitcases but more probably are merely returning from the International Plumbing and Sanitation Conference.

And there up in front, rarin' to go, is the huge steam loco bearing the train's title in a big circle pierced by a golden arrow. And what a production it makes of taking off! Great belching of smoke and hissing of steam and whirring of wheels, which leave no doubt in the minds of anybody nearby that the Golden Arrow is on her way.

For exactly 32 years, from May, 1929, she's been doing that. And what have we got now? Electric motive power in the form of a loco up front that doesn't look much different from an ordinary train carriage.

Sure it makes for a smoother, more efficient and cleaner ride. But I feel like the old engine-drivers, whose reaction is: "It's a sad day for those of us who have steam in our veins."

Early 'Mum Show This Weekend

Those who admired the lovely outdoor grown chrysanthemums at the Curling Rink over the weekend will have the opportunity to see a show devoted entirely to these flowers.

On Friday and Saturday, the Victoria and District Chrysanthemum Society will hold its early 'mum show at the Mount Tolmie Scout and Guide Hall on Shelbourne Street.

The gardener who wonders why his chrysanthemums are late to bloom will be able to learn a lot from visiting this show.

By asking questions of the members in attendance, it will be found that certain varieties are early blooming, from late August on, while others are suited to pot growing in a cool greenhouse, for flowering later in the season.

OUTDOORS

All the 'mums seen at last week's show and at the show to be held this week, are grown outdoors.

Another point which the gardener can discover is that certain varieties are grown as "disbuds", that is, one large flower to a stem.

Others are more suitable for sprays, and these are usually grown three sprays, or cuts, to a plant.

IT'S AN ART

Chrysanthemum culture is an art, but it is not beyond the scope of the average gardener, and we are fortunate to have groups in the city willing to impart instructions to the beginners.

Hundreds of varieties will be staged, and there is no doubt that many visitors to this show will become new names on the growing list of chrysanthemum enthusiasts.

Mexico Peasants Riot

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The unofficial death toll in uprisings scattered throughout Mexico rose to 40 Saturday as fresh reports reached the capital from remote rural areas.

A government communique linked the peasant uprisings in Vera Cruz to a rebel movement headed by retired army general Celestino Gasca, who was arrested with a group of followers in a raid on his house in Mexico City last Friday.

ECM Attractions 'Can't Be Ignored'

OTTAWA (CP)—Canadian, United Kingdom and United States businessmen met Sunday behind closed doors to examine mutual problems, including Britain's application to join the European Common Market.

It is understood the United States delegation saw eye to eye with sentiments expressed in a Saturday communique after Canada-U.K. talks—that the attractive trade opportunities in the European market of 220,000,000 cannot be ignored.

The Canada-U.K. committee, sponsored by the Canadian

Scientists Agree—On Silence

STOWE, Vt. (AP)—Scientists from 11 nations reached agreement on several world problems during a two-week conference ending Saturday but withheld disclosure of their conclusions.

The eighth "Pugwash" conference on science and world affairs issued a formal statement declaring the hope "that the desire for peace... will make possible a peaceful resolution of the conflicts which have led to the present deterioration of the international situation."

The conference series was started by Cleveland industrialist Cyrus Eaton at his Pugwash, N.S., home several years ago.

Dr. Harrison Brown of California Institute of Technology, spokesman for the conferees, told reporters details of the conference's decision were not disclosed because "some members are hesitant over the rapidity with which conclusions were drawn."

He said several of the 48 scientists, including Russians, want to check facts and figures before taking a public stand or the issues discussed. Brown said the idea will be sent to the governments of the various countries, including Russia, represented at the conference, and to the United Nations.

Ex-Victorian Appointed Shrum Aide

A one-time Victoria College student has been appointed executive assistant to Dr. Gordon Shrum, chairman of the B.C. Electric, recently expropriated by the provincial government.

John Wilson Gouge, 35, a chemical engineer who has covered a wide field of economic and research since his graduation, took over the position last week.

AT TRAIL

A native of Drumheller, Alta., Mr. Gouge studied here before attending University of British Columbia. In 1950 he joined Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company at Trail where he worked for two years in the research and development division.

He later worked with the B.C. Research Council under Dr. Shrum.

sharp blow at the influence of the Roman Catholic Church in Cuba.

Five unidentified Canadian priests were reported to be in the group that sailed aboard the Spanish ship Covadonga. The Spanish Embassy earlier protested that its representatives were barred from visiting the priests aboard the 10,226-ton vessel.

Bishop Masvidal, who was arrested Sept. 12 after a bloody demonstration in front of his church, Havana's Church of Charity, was escorted to the ship in a police car at the last moment. Several hundred who had gathered on the dock cheered and applauded him.

The mass deportation left only about 50 priests to man Havana's nearly 60 churches.

FOLLOWS DISTURBANCES

This blow against the church's influence was launched in the wake of the demonstration by about 4,000 Catholics last Sunday that led to disorders in which a youth was shot to death, three persons were wounded, and scores were bruised by police clubs. The rallying cry of those demonstrators, massed at the Church of Charity for a religious procession that never came off, was "Cuba Yes, Russia No."

NEW YORK—Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh saved their Hollywood marriage which looked on the rocks a few weeks ago. With their two children, they sail from here today for Argentina where Tony'll do a movie with Janet sidelining and being a dutiful wife and mother. . . . Janice Rule was kissing Ben Gazzara (crutches and all) on a busy street corner here—right in broad daylight.

Society madcap Christina Paolozzi posed for a nude photo by Richard Avedon which'll run in the October Harpers Bazaar. "We're claiming that photography today is the same as impressionist painting and that this nude is like a Matisse," says Christina. It's Christina's answer to Playboy's nude Playmates; however, those models get up to $3,000; she got nothing—"it was for art." Christina's mother's in Paris. Christina hopes "she stays there till this dies down."

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy!

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Vickie Stubblefield, age 11, of Visalia, Calif., for her question:

Where Do Hummingbirds Spend the Winter?

Hank is a hummingbird who lives in Andy's garden. He is a scrappy, though friendly, character always busy whirling among the flowers like a little living helicopter. A few of his cousins fly tremendous distances between their winter and summer homes. Some fly 500 miles non-stop across the Gulf of Mexico. But Hank plans to spend the winter in Andy's garden in southern California. He is a home body, never straying far from the leafy bush where he was born. And this is true of most of the hummingbird cousins.

More than 300 different hummers have been named and classified and all of them are natives of the New World. Most varieties are year-round residents of Central and South America, the subtropics, the high Andes and the islands of Cuba and Jamaica. Most of them, like Hank, never venture far from home. However, a few sturdy fellows fly off to build their nests and rear their young in faraway places.

Less than 20 species fly across the border into North America. The pretty ruby-throated hummer spreads out over the land east of the Mississippi. A half dozen varieties cross the Rio Grande from Mexico into Arizona. The copper-backed rufous hummer ventures as far north as British Columbia and Alaska to build his nest. Come fall, he takes the mountain flyway, where the weeds flower late in the fall, and passes through Salt Lake City in early October.

In late summer, Mrs. Ruby Throat and his family stake up on nectar and small insects and reach the Southland in late September. Then all take off across the wide, watery wastes of the Gulf of Mexico to winter in Mexico. In the past, some people thought the tiny birds made the long trip on the backs of bigger birds. But this is not so. Each makes the long flight under his own power.

Winter in South America

The hummers that come to North America as summer visitors usually spend the winter in Mexico. Other hummers winter in the high Andes and fly way down to Tierra del Fuego to build their nests. They are nest building, of course, in December, for south of the equator this is the summer season. Hummers can be spotted, then, all the way from Alaska to Cape Horn. However, only a few of them migrate and most of them spend their entire lives in the subtropics, the metropolis of the hummingbird world.

Jamaica is the home of the streamer-tailed hummer, a little green fellow with large ear muffs, a red bill and a plumed tail. The sapphire-crowned hummingbird is one of the numerous hummers of the Andes. He is rosy red with green wings and a long, streaming tail of bluish-green. The frilled-collared hummingbird has a greenish-bronze body, a coral red bill, a tufted crown of copper and a ruffled white collar tipped with green and black. Hank is called the Anna hummingbird. His tiny back glistens with peacock green and he has a ruby red patch across his throat.

Kootenay Farm Hit By Arson

RASPBERRY — A house and a number of farm buildings in this community were destroyed by fire Sunday. Kootenay RCMP said arson is suspected.

The blaze started in a barn at the back of the village, spread to another barn, then to the Bill Hernhinen farm home. Two garages and two woodsheds were also destroyed.

Previous acts of terrorism in the Kootenays—which included bomb bombings and fires—have been attributed to the radical Sons of Freedom Dolykhor sect.

RCMP gave $10,000 as an estimate of the damage.

To Seek Raise

VANCOUVER — The city's inside and outside workers will seek wage increases this year. Business agent Max Pierotti of the Vancouver City Hall Employees' Association said Sunday the union executive has instructed him to reopen all contracts.

Jack Phillips of the Outside Workers Union said the union executive will recommend the members ask for a general wage increase.

New School

MISSION — Opening ceremonies will be held here Wednesday at a $1,500,000 Indian school with accommodation for 250 students in grades 1 to 8. Citizenship Minister Fairclough will officiate.

The new school is located near the old Indian school which the Oblate fathers founded in 1863. The Oblate order will direct the new school.

Freed in Killing

VANCOUVER — An all-male jury deliberated for more than seven hours Saturday night before it acquitted Dieter Wilhelm Reim, 21, in the death of hair stylist Barry Glazebrook, 27.

Reim had been charged with non-capital murder in the hairdresser's death early March 21 at his West End suite. Police said Glazebrook had been stabbed several times in the chest and back with a butcher's knife.

Reim said in evidence Friday he had been in Glazebrook's apartment on the night of his death, but Glazebrook was alive and uninjured when he left. He said he saw two men outside the apartment as he was leaving.

Atom Protest

VANCOUVER — More than 900 ban-the-bomb demonstrators walked in silence along downtown Vancouver sidewalks Saturday.

The four-mile public protest walk was sponsored by the B.C. Committee on Radiation Hazards. The demonstration in bright sunshine began outside a book shop in the 900 block Robson Street.

Demonstrators carried multi-colored placards bearing nuclear disarmament symbols and slogans.

Because it is illegal to stage a public parade in the city on a Saturday, the organizers told demonstrators to walk in pairs and stay on the sidewalks.

Educationist Dies

VANCOUVER — Funeral services were held here at the weekend for a well-known British Columbia educationist, Dr. Alexander Russell Lord, 77, who died last week.

Born in Merigomish, N.S., he was educated at Queen's University.

When he first came to B.C. he was principal at Kelowna Elementary School and later inspector of schools in Prince Rupert district, the Okanagan and Vancouver.

He retired in 1950 to become a special lecturer at the B.C. College of Education. The same year he was awarded the Ferguson Memorial award for his "outstanding contribution to education in B.C."

In 1949 he held an advisory position with the United Nations as co-ordinator between the Canadian and UN educational systems.

PERKING (Reuters) — Chinese newspapers, which so far have not mentioned the Soviet resumption of nuclear weapons tests, Monday reported briefly the United States tests of Friday and Saturday.

Super Shell's TCP helps keep the power and mileage of your car as good as new.

NEW CARS:

These 1962 cars could deliver top performance with only 8 of Super Shell's 9 ingredients. But they'll very soon need the ninth. Do you know why?

If car engines could stay clean as new, they'd get along fine without Shell's TCP additive. But harmful deposits start building up the moment your car leaves the showroom—and can soon cut your power and mileage. TCP works to keep that from happening. Here's how.

THE ENGINE of every car on the road has combustion chamber deposits. Nothing can stop these deposits from forming. They're the inevitable result of combustion.

If your car has only a couple of thousand miles on it, you probably won't know the deposits are there. But once they've built up, they can be rough on performance. Fortunately, something can be done about that. And Shell's unique TCP additive does it.

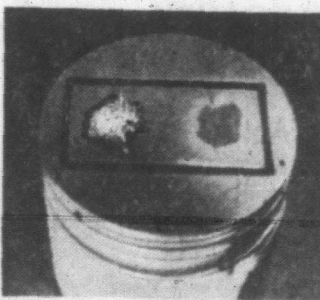

How deposits cause trouble:
Here's what can happen inside your engine. When certain combustion chamber deposits get hot enough, they can beat spark plugs to the punch and ignite the fuel themselves.

These premature explosions are called pre-ignition. They give your pistons a terrific hammering. Your power falls off. And so does your mileage.

Deposits can also form right on spark plugs, short-circuit them—and take them right out of the act.

They don't ignite the fuel. The fuel doesn't burn. And you get a miss. Instead of purring smoothly, your engine falters—and costs you money.

How TCP prevents trouble

New aviation-grade TCP in today's Super Shell gasoline alters these combustion chamber deposits chemically. It "fireproofs" them so they no longer glow red hot. And it helps keep them from conducting electricity—so that they won't short-circuit your spark plugs.

Result: top performance.
And as a little extra, TCP can help spark plugs last up to twice as long.

NOTE TO OWNERS OF OLDER CARS: TCP can improve the performance of many older cars. Tests have shown that it helps to restore power lost to harmful combustion deposits—and can add up to 17 miles per tankful.

9-ingredient formula

TCP is just one of Super Shell's nine ingredients. To get an idea of how all nine contribute to top performance, run your eye over the list at the right.

Winter Blend Coming

As temperatures drop across Canada, two ingredients in Super Shell's nine-ingredient formula are adjusted for top performance in cold weather:

1. A special compound is added to reduce stalling caused by "carburetor frosting" in cold, wet weather. 2. Super Shell's Winter Blend contains more butane, the eager ingredient that vaporizes even in zero weather to help you have fast starts on cold mornings.

Here are the 9 ingredients in Super Shell—and what they do to give your car top performance

- #1 is TCP* for power, mileage, and longer plug life.
- #2 is mixed pentanes for fast warm-ups.
- #3 is anti-knock mix to resist all kinds of knocks.
- #4 is heavy alkanes to control "high speed knocks."
- #5 is butane for quick starts.
- #6 is "cat-cracked" gasoline—for extra power.
- #7 is an "anti-icer" (added in cold weather).
- #8 is gum preventive to keep carburetors clean inside.
- #9 is Platformate for extra mileage.

LOOKS AT SPORTS

At 9.30 a.m. Sunday when saner people were still conviving with the Sandman, a group of men-vibrant Junior Chamber of Commerce members and not so vibrant press types—stood patiently behind rows of tables in the Empress Hotel ballroom.

They kidded one another—"got a toothpick to keep my lids up?"—and told lies about the fish they hadn't caught and waited for the New York Yankees of hockey, the Montreal Canadiens, to appear.

The occasion was a breakfast reception for Les Habitants. The Jaycees shared host honors with a brewery whose name cannot be mentioned unless the thirst becomes unbearable and naturally you have to reach for Molson's.

Finally they came, looking like young executives in their well-tailored suits, white shirts and ties crisply knotted a la Windsor. They oozed quiet confidence and class as befits members of a team which has won five National Hockey League flags and a like number of Stanley Cup successes in the last six years.

They were relaxed and convivial. Later they would tie their skates on and glide gently around Memorial Arena pond for the public to ogle. Then on Monday, coach Hector "Toe" Blake would latch the door and they would be at each other's throats. The fight for survival, the right to earn a living would cut the "for he's a jolly good fellow" stuff to a bare minimum.

One Crumpet Lasts Until December

Waitresses planted scrambled eggs on tables and the calorie contest began in earnest. Dickie Moore, quiet but pleasant, disdained coffee for tea. Don Marshall, noticing a scribe's wonderment, smiled.

"Don't know why but you can travel easier on tea than coffee," he said, accepting coffee. "We always have tea four hours before a game."

He looked around the table. "Would you pass the crumpets, please?"

"You eat one of those, it will stay with you until December," a man said.

"I know," Marshall said. "But I like them. And we don't really start work until tomorrow."

Around the dining room, the rookies ate silently, answering only when spoken to. Unknown, untied, they are not yet in demand for opinions on life in the NHL. Others such as Jean Beliveau and Bernie Geoffrion and Moore hardly had time to eat for answering questions.

The speeches were mercifully brisk, involving huge welcomes and an offer by A. E. "Bert" Walters, chamber president, to the Canadiens to replenish their wallets at a bank he manages. He did not say if the offer extended beyond Sunday when the bank is securely bolted.

The coffee was cold by this time but the piece de resistance—guest speaker Kenny Reardon—was yet to mount the podium.

He stepped up, black-haired and handsome, looking fit enough to play defence and to teach forgetful forwards to keep their heads up or lose them.

Reardon Had a Much Shorter Wait

His version of the Canadiens' preference for Victoria and the subsequent cross-country tour complimented Blake's, Canadiens, he said, no longer belong to Montreal.

Television had brought them into living rooms from Halifax to Victoria. Hordes of people who had regarded them with indifference or hostility now embraced them. A trickle of letters into his office had given away to a deluge of mail bringing delight to the Montreal brass and bent backs to postmen.

As talented on the banquet circuit as he was a player (he's now vice-president), Reardon told a tale about his salad days as a player.

Canadiens were leading Rangers 2-1 with 30 seconds to play at New York. Getting the puck from a faceoff, he swung behind his net determined to carry the puck out rather than shoot it and lose possession.

He passed one Ranger and another. Then a New York stick rendered him somewhat toothless, not to mention dazed.

"As I started to the clinic for stitching," said Reardon, "a bald man in a grey suit leered: 'Ha! Ha! Reardon, you son of a... I've waited eight years for you to get yours.'"

"I started to swing my stick at him and a Garden policeman pushed me. I went sprawling. The Rangers craned their necks to see what had happened."

"Across the rink, the Canadiens, seeing me go down and the Rangers apparently responsible and enjoying it, came over the boards. The Rangers, not anxious to be trapped in their own trench, spilled over too. The result was the greatest fight in hockey history. Took 30 policemen to stop it."

"Anyhow, I'm sitting in the clinic getting stitched when a bald man in a grey suit. He's holding a towel to his head and the blood is running down his neck and down his face."

"I didn't have many teeth left but I looked at him and said, 'Ha! Ha! You son of a... I only had to wait a few minutes to see you get yours.'"

ARGOS VISIT B.C. TONIGHT

Lions in a Class by Themselves After Als Win

A couple of unblemished records—one good and one bad—will be tested tonight as the western phase of the Canadian Football League's partial interlocking schedule winds up for 1961 on two fronts.

Hamilton Tiger-Cats, only undefeated team in the CFL after a hair-raising 37-36 victory over the Calgary Stampede Saturday night, will be trying to stretch their winning streak to seven games when they collide with the Saskatchewan Roughriders at Regina.

Meanwhile, the winless British Columbia Lions, short kilted Tom Hinton and Tom Brown who have injured knees, will be battling to improve their one tie, seven-loss record when they take on Toronto Argonauts at Vancouver. The Argos withstood a late rally by Edmonton Eskimos Saturday night for an 8-8 tie in their game at Edmonton.

Tonight's games are the last of 19 appearances by members of the Eastern Conference in the West. Calgary has two more appearances in the East. One record, also of a dubious nature, fell by the wayside when Montreal finally won game. Alouettes chalked up win No. 1 by defeating Ottawa Rough Riders 26-12 Saturday.

Big Turnout at Arena To Watch First Workout

By DOUG PEDEN

Complacency may or may not have been a factor in Montreal Canadiens' failure to win a sixth successive Stanley Cup last season, but the attitude of coach Hector "Toe" Blake suggests that he intends to leave no room for self-satisfaction in the Montreal camp this winter.

Toe has had just two major setbacks in his six-year coaching career with the Canadiens. The club missed the National Hockey Championship once—in 1956-57—and last season Blake saw a personal and club record go down the drain when the Habits were bounced in semifinal playoffs by Chicago Black Hawks after winning Lord Stanley's silverware five straight times.

The diplomatic Blake, a guy who detests alibis, isn't putting the finger on any one thing he believes cost the Habits another cup. But he and every other member of the Canadiens' organization believe the trophy, belongs in Montreal.

Today Toe started to do

Habs Bound to Feel Loss of Harvey

It was the only open practice planned and Victorians made the most of the opportunity to take a look at heroes of the hockey world.

About 4,000 fans of assorted ages flocked into the arena and roared out welcomes to television favorites like Jean Beliveau, Bernie Geoffrion and Henri Richard when the players, introduced individually by club vice-president Ken Reardon, skated on to the ice.

Canadiens spent considerable time standing around the boards, talking to fans and signing autographs before starting their skating drills.

It was strictly a loosening-up workout, with the players on their own and allowed to quit when they wished. Today it was strictly work as Blake, dividing his charges into red and white teams for scrimmage sessions that will last during the two-week training camp, picked up the whistle and the whip.

Geoffrion was the first to leave the ice Sunday. "That's enough," the Boomer muttered when he plopped down on the dressing room bench after 20 minutes of skating.

Geoffrion was shaping up as a likely holdout before signing a contract Saturday. He had aimed at a five-year and then a three-year pact. The burly winger, who last season equaled Rocket Richard's record of 50 goals in one season, signed for only one year, but at a big salary boost.

The Boomer also has the same bonus clauses he had last year, one of which will pay him $100 for each goal of 20.

This season starts a new era for the Habs, who traded their great defenceman and team captain, Doug Harvey, to New York and Blake admitted he may have some worries about his blueliners.

Defeat Should Be Needle for Club

"Doug is the greatest defenceman there has ever been in hockey," Toe said, "but he's gone and we can't just sit around and cry about it. We've got to think in a few years we'll be the outstanding defencemen in the National League."

What about complacency? "After what the Hawks did to us," Blake said, "the fellows know now that they can be beaten. I look for more spirit. The defeat we had should be a needle for us."

"Any way, we'll see."

Brocton Retains Inter-City Laurels

Brocton Point Cricket Club kept the Tomalin Cup in Vancouver for another year Sunday, chalking up an easy eight-wicket victory over Inco's at Beacon Hill Park.

Brocton Point, which defeated the same club last year in the annual trophy match between the Mainland League champions and the Victoria League winners, dismissed Inco's for 99 runs and then passed the total for the loss of only two wickets.

In the women's division, Englands Ann Haydon, of Birmingham, took the singles title by defeating Ann Barclay, of Toronto, 6-0, 6-0.

Reed reached the final Saturday by defeating Bob Bedard, of Lennoxville, Que., 4-6, 6-2, 2-6, 7-5, 6-4. Bedard, seeking his fourth Canadian title, appeared headed for a win until leg cramps hit him in the fourth set.

Sangster trimmed Francois Godbout, of Waterloo, Que., 6-4, 6-4, 6-4 in Saturday's semi.

DRAKES CLUBBED, 40-14

Rough Tactics Mar Royal Win

New Westminster, 46, Drakes 14
By ERNIE FEDORUK

Forty to 14 is a fine-looking score, and on other days New Westminster Royals might be given credit—in full—for an impressive Pacific Coast Intermediate Football Conference victory over Victoria's Drakes.

Had the New Westminster players won graciously, the credit might have still come.

Instead, the Royals went about carving out a victory in the Maffia fashion.

Three of their number—line men—Dave Hinton, Joe Marceau and Ken Harrison—were ejected from Saturday's rough house encounter at MacDonald Park. That's when officials detected the questionable Maffia tactics.

Two Drakes, playing coach Jack Patrick and tackle Bob Coultis also were bounced in the same manner.

This suggests that the Drakes aren't gentlemen either. They aren't always, but there seems little doubt that the instigators of rough play were the Royals.

RASSLE AT BENCH
The display of bad-manners by New Westminster wasn't confined to the playing field. Coach Glen Ramsden, obviously afflicted with a serious case of rabbit ears, suddenly turned on a teen-ager standing near the Royals' bench and struck the youth in the mouth.

Regardless of what was said, Ramsden's actions were obviously in bad taste. Equally obvious is the fact that if he can not control his own temper he can expect to have little control over his players' tempers.

Football is normally a rough game, and the Westminsters seem intent on dropping the level of the league to a jungle—or bush—league.

That is the most unfortunate aspect of Saturday's game. Teams were tied 14-14 heading into Saturday's final quarter. Quarterback Mike Davies and halfback Jerry Kruse each scored two touchdowns in the final frame to turn the game into a rout. The two, incidentally, were among the few Royals who "played the game".

Patrick was quite disgusted. He accused Royals of "deliberate" rough play, and added: "They have a good football team. They don't have to play that way."

"It's just that they don't know any better."

World Title Won Again By Sailor

NELSON — Danny Sailor, well-known competitor in Vancouver Island logging sports, clambered up and down a 90-foot spar tree in 29 seconds over the weekend to retain his world champion tree-scaling title.

United States champion Kelly Stanley of Kosmos, Wash., performed the same feat in 39 seconds.

Later Sailor, who lives at Newton, held the 2,000 Chahko Mika Games crowd breathless with a nimble performance on his high 12-inch diameter perch.

He did the Charleston, touched his toes several times, stood on his head, used a hoola hoop and raced his hat to the ground. The hat lost.

Chahko mika, in Indian, means: "I come; you come; we all come."

FOUR SAVED AS FISHBOAT GOES UNDER

VANCOUVER (CP) — Four men were rescued Saturday night after the fishing vessel Aleutian Island sank near the Queen Charlotte Islands.

The men were picked up by another fish boat, the Satellite Two, which was in the vicinity.

Rescued were Robin Harry, his brother, Peter, and Earl Johnson, all of Nanaimo. The fourth man was not identified. No reason was available what caused the sinking of the Canadian Fishing Company vessel.

UNITED APPEAL

Mayor Maffeo Challenged By Kamloops

KAMLOOPS — Mayor Jack Fitzwater of Kamloops has challenged Mayor Pete Maffeo of Nanaimo to a wager one Pacific salmon to a box of apples in a contest to see which city reaches its United Appeal Fund objective first.

Mayor Fitzwater made a similar bet with Mayor Maffeo last year and said he didn't get his salmon after his city hit its quota first.

He says he will be satisfied to get two this year.

Concerts Assured Despite Money Woes

DUNCAN — The Victoria Symphony Orchestra's series of concerts in Duncan will go on this winter—but a meeting was held last week to discuss ways to avoid going "in the red" each season.

Because of the annual loss there is a danger the visits may be curtailed or even cut out altogether.

Duncan Business and Professional Women's Club, who sponsor the orchestra in Duncan, called the meeting of music lovers and all the town's service clubs sent representatives.

Hans Gruber, musical director of the orchestra, and Jack Barracough, business manager, explained that after reimbursements from the Canada Council and Duncan guarantee there was still a net loss of $2,622.

The meeting agreed that more effort should be made to try and sell season tickets and to persuade more people

NANOOSE—An investigation is underway to determine the cause of a fire which destroyed the $100,000 mill of Extension Lumber Company here Saturday night.

The fire struck only 10 days after the company had installed $30,000 worth of electrical equipment in the plant. The mill was insured.

The fire was first spotted at 9:30 p.m. by a woman passer-by. A few moments later, the large quantities of stacked lumber became a roaring inferno.

Local fire-fighting crews were unable to stop the flames because of the intense heat.

The blaze was seen for miles around and watched by hundreds of motorists.

COURTENAY—David Taylor, 20, of New Westminster, was in good condition in hospital here Sunday night with back injuries suffered when he was trampled by a steer during the Vancouver Island Rodeo.

Taylor was thrown and then was struck by the front legs of the steer while lying on the ground.

The rodeo, held in conjunction with the 68th Annual Comox Valley Fall Fair, attracted more than 11,000 fans during its three-day run.

COURTENAY—Andrew Patrick White of Ladysmith and Reginald Bruce Webber of Courtenay escaped serious injury here early Sunday when cars they were driving were involved in a head-on collision.

Police said both vehicles left the road, one ending on a roadside bank and the other rolling into a 20-foot ditch.

COURTENAY — If LAC Bob Clarke has his way this area would set up a school to preserve Indian arts and folklore.

LAC Clarke suggested at a meeting of the Comox Valley Historical Society that Mungo Martin, famed Indian totem carver of Victoria, might instruct Indians in the art of totem carving if he retired to this area, so that totem carving would not become a lost art.

The society has set up a committee to study the proposal.

CAMPBELL RIVER—A coroner's jury here returned a verdict of accidental death with no blame attached in the case of 25-year-old logger Stanley Lavigne, who died suddenly on Sept. 16 at the Catermole Logging Co. at Pictou Point.

A first aid man from the logging camp testified that Lavigne was injured a month earlier, on Aug. 10, and taken at that time to Vancouver hospital for treatment.

He returned to work, then suddenly fell ill, relapsing into unconsciousness.

Dr. R. Murphy, who performed the autopsy, said he found the old injury had become infected. He said a germ could have weakened tissues and caused a fatal brain clot.

PORT ALBERNI — Gordon Armstrong and Robert Thompson will appear in court here today charged with theft.

They were charged in connection with the theft of logging equipment from a construction company here during the weekend.

PORT ALBERNI — An RCMP search party Sunday found Okle Ouro, missing for 24 hours in rugged bushland near Horne Lake.

Police said Ouro was in good condition and came through the ordeal well.

PORT ALBERNI—Three persons were treated and released from hospital here Sunday following two separate car accidents.

Terrance Dyck of Errington, near Parksville, and Josephine Stephenson of Port Alberni were injured in a two-car collision between Parksville and Port Alberni.

Donald McGinnis of Nanaimo was injured when he lost control of his car and it left a road here.

ALBERNI—Ratepayers in the rural area of Cherry Point will be asked at a general meeting Oct. 21 if they favor organizing a volunteer fire department.

If the meeting favors the project, trustees are prepared to go ahead with the plans without taking a referendum, a spokesman said.

Cost of organizing a volunteer fire department would be about $75,000, Charles Haggard said.

A provincial government loan could be obtained to cover capital costs and it has been estimated additional taxes would be compensated for by the decrease in fire insurance premiums.

NANAIMO—Zoos in Great Britain may come to the rescue of some of the animal residents of the recently-closed Nanaimo zoo.

Dan Detweiler, in charge of the collection here, said Sunday in an interview he is negotiating with several persons in Britain.

"There may be action this week," he said.

DUNCAN—Recreation Minister Earle Westwood has informed the Cowichan Fish and Game Club his department is conducting a study of the recreational potential of the Cowichan Valley.

He made the disclosure in a written reply to the club's inquiry on access to the south side of the Cowichan River on Crown lands.

The minister said the game branch is working on the problem and hoped to complete its investigations soon.

DUNCAN — Duncan Toastmasters' Club, which aims this winter to double its membership to the working limit of 40, last week appointed a new slate of officers: President, Don Pederson; secretary, Graeme Johnston; treasurer, Mike Cebrowski; educational vice-president, Ron Southern, and administrative vice-president, Ray Turney. The installation will be held early in October.

Another Highway Victim

Accident victim of a different kind, was a six-month-old fawn struck by a car near Swartz Bay Saturday night. It was to be destroyed today at the request of the provincial game department.

The soft-eyed animal was found lying in the road by a passing motorist and brought to the city's SPCA. Another fawn with it at the time, headed off into the bush.

The young deer is seen in the picture here in an improvised stall at SPCA headquarters with Mrs. Marie Petrat. But all the loving care in the world could not help it—the creature was paralyzed as a result of the impact with the car.

'Hysterical Dramatics' Says Strachan

Bennett Speech Called Cover-Up

Premier Bennett was guilty of "hysterical amateur dramatics" at Prince George in an attempt to cover up the deception of his power policy for B.C., Opposition Leader Robert Strachan charged today.

Mr. Strachan said the premier's claim that Columbia River electricity would cost as much as 8.65 mills was "another red herring."

He called it: "A figure that for some strange reason escaped the notice of the Energy Board, for they did not draw attention to it in their report, although they did note that in the first year the Peace average unit cost would be 8.62 mills."

HARMFUL

Mr. Strachan was joined by Liberal leader Ray Perrault, who said the premier's speech Saturday "worsened immeasurably" relations between B.C. and Ottawa.

Mr. Perrault said the speech did not answer a single meaningful question about the premier's power policy.

He called for a "summit conference" between B.C. and Ottawa leaders to remove the issue from politics and put it into economics. The public interest demands an end to the "running dogfight" between the two sides, he said.

Mr. Strachan likened the premier's speech to a quote from Emerson's "Conduct of Life": "The louder he talked of his honor the faster we counted our spoons."

COVER-UP

Mr. Strachan commented: "His hysterical amateur dramatics were a cover-up for his inability to answer with facts the unpleasant truth that both the Energy Board and the government had attempted to deceive the people with a biased report in a vain effort to justify a decision to develop the Peace River regardless of its cost, a decision the premier now admits had been made prior to the board's report being received."

Mr. Strachan said the premier did not produce "one shred of genuine evidence" to refute these six points:

1. The British consulting engineers hired by the Energy Board showed that Columbia power would be at least 20 per cent cheaper than Peace power.
2. The Energy Board omitted in its report many figures worked out by these consultants "in an effort to put the Peace River in a more favorable light."
3. The board deliberately left out any calculation of the cut in costs which would result from any loan or grant toward the Columbia by Ottawa.
4. The consulting engineers' report was "deliberately" withheld by the government from the legislature and the federal government.
5. The board used a different formula for calculating loads of power to be used in the two projects, assuming 60 per cent of Peace power would be used in the Peace River country—"a completely unrealistic assumption" designed to make the Peace look better.
6. Real reason for taking over the B.C. Electric was to finance the Peace regardless of its effect on consumer light bills, and to use the tax savings for the Peace, not to cut the rates.

FIGURES CHANGED

Mr. Strachan again pointed out that the Energy Board changed figures of its consultants by omitting from the Columbia costs the benefits of industry and new plants which would come on the Kootenay River.

The consultants' maximum cost of Columbia power—during its first year in 1967—was 7.27 mills, said Mr. Strachan. The Energy Board changed this to 7.69 mills.

A similar figure for the first year of the Peace project is 8.62 mills in both reports.

Civil Defence headquarters today denied any knowledge of the sounding of air-raid warning sirens.

A resident of Westdown Road this morning complained of hearing the "take-cover" warning.

"I think it's terrible they can play around with them like this without first telling us—unless, of course, it's the real thing," he said.

"We haven't got anything going on," a CD spokesman said. "People could be hearing the fire siren."

TREES-IN-TUBS PLAN WINS PARKS COMMITTEE BACKING

City parks committee today gave its approval to a suggestion that trees in tubs be used to decorate sidewalks in front of City Hall during 1962 centennial celebrations.

Proposal was raised by city planner Roderick Clark, chairman of the centennial decorations sub-committee.

The idea was raised after parks committee chairman M. H. Mooney said council should adopt a bylaw which would enable downtown merchants to establish trees in tubs on the sidewalks a block at a time.

"Maybe they would do it and maybe they wouldn't, but at least we should make it legally possible," Mr. Mooney said.

Dressage Show Thrills 1,500

A crowd estimated at close to 1,500 thrilled to the performance of one of the world's top horsewomen and her highly schooled mare in an exhibition of dressage here Sunday.

Miss Inez Fischer-Credo of Vancouver and Gordina were the feature attraction at Victoria Western Horsemen's Club's fifth annual show at Saanichton fair grounds showing.

Miss Fischer-Credo was judge of the first dressage tests presented at a local horse show, then later, during the main portion of the horsemen's club annual competitions in both English and western riding, gave the exhibition of her "artistry" in the saddle.

With Dr. S. T. R. Sargeant of Vancouver giving a commentary over the public address system, Miss Fischer-Credo put Gordina through a series of movements few of the crowd believed were possible for a horse to do.

Dressage is perfection in riding, and the "ballet" of horsemanship demonstrated won rounds of applause after each movement was completed.

Miss Fischer-Credo, of German Spanish parentage, received most of her horsemanship schooling in her native Germany. After nearly three years in England and Ireland she came to Canada six and one-half years ago to Dr. and Mrs. Sargeant in Vancouver.

She was a member of the German Olympic jumping team in 1952 and has competed in such places as Rome, Nice, Brussels, Rotterdam and Dublin.

Her first love with horses is dressage, although she has competed internationally in jumping, hacking and cross-country racing.

Miss Fischer-Credo's "partner"—Gordina—is a thoroughbred which raced on the Pacific Coast, until the age of seven.

She was purchased by Dr. and Mrs. Sargeant and turned over to Miss Fischer-Credo, who has been schooling her the past four years.

The beautiful animal and her rider-trainer have been invited to give performances at the Royal Winter Fair in Toronto, and at an exhibition in Seattle next month.

The dressage exhibition rounded out a program of high-calibre performances in English jumping and Western riding events which saw excellent competition from Vancouver, Duncan, Nanaimo and Victoria riders.

Judge of the main part of the show was C. C. Carpenter of Victoria.

In the morning dressage tests, results were: 1st, Linda Pouch with Jean Dunbar; 2nd, Linda Pouch with Jean Dunbar; 3rd, Linda Pouch with Jean Dunbar; 4th, Linda Pouch with Jean Dunbar; 5th, Linda Pouch with Jean Dunbar; 6th, Linda Pouch with Jean Dunbar; 7th, Linda Pouch with Jean Dunbar; 8th, Linda Pouch with Jean Dunbar; 9th, Linda Pouch with Jean Dunbar; 10th, Linda Pouch with Jean Dunbar.

Two Suspects Held By Aberdeen Sheriff

A Victoria pleasure cruiser is aground on a Washington beach today after being stolen from the Inner Harbor Saturday morning and sailed more than 200 miles.

Efforts at re-floating the 46-foot Blue Chip at high tide today are unsuccessful, the $10,000 craft may be abandoned as a total wreck on the beach near Aberdeen, Washington.

Two men, now being held by the sheriff at Aberdeen, Wash., are said to have taken Blue Chip from her jetty at the foot of Kingston Street early Saturday.

"There is only fire insurance on her," said Mrs. H. Rottle-Robinson, 3340 Wickheim, wife of the owner. "If she can't be floated she will be a total loss."

Assuming a direct route was taken, the distance from Victoria to Gray's Harbor where the boat is lying is just over 200 sea miles.

NEEDED GAS However, the thieves are thought to have put into a U.S. harbor for gas on their way out through the Juan de Fuca Strait.

Gray's Harbor is a relatively uninhabited, bay just east of Aberdeen on the same latitude as Olympia.

At 11:45 p.m. Sunday Air-Sea Search and Rescue in Vancouver reported a boat at Point Grenville, Wash., with two men who replied to questions in a foreign language.

The two men were understood to have been taken into custody by the Gray's Harbor sheriff after they returned to the boat with 50 gallons of gas.

It is not known whether the boat was floating or aground at that time.

HARBOR CRAFT Painted a light green and white, with maroon trim, Blue Chip was a former Canadian Naval auxiliary vessel used as a harbor craft.

The Robinsons bought her in March and have been fitting her out as a combined fishing and pleasure craft.

They had just returned from one trip and were proposing to embark on another Saturday morning when they discovered the theft.

Mrs. Robinson said even if the U.S. Coast Guard could have refloated the boat earlier, they were prevented from doing so without written consent of the owner.

Her husband, who is at the scene, reported little disturbed on board and nothing damaged except for the engine which had been running on coal oil for some time after the men ran out of gas.

Vancouver Man 'Only Fair' After Car Rolls

A Vancouver man is in only fair condition, with a skull fracture today after his car rolled Sunday in an Oak Bay accident.

Police said Peter Bell, 23, was driving east on Windsor at 1:15 a.m. when the car "swung hard left" and rolled over at the intersection of Transit.

A passenger, Anthony Lloyd, 25, of 1618 Richmond, was thrown clear and not injured.

Bell, who was trapped in the car for a short time before being released by police, also received undetermined internal injuries.

Frosh Week Plays Down Pranks In Move to Help United Appeal

By LESLIE MILLIN

Times College Correspondent

Victoria College students today were asked to convert part of their freshman-hazing activities into assistance for this year's United Appeal campaign.

Floyd A. Fairclough, director of residential canvassing for the United Appeal, and Brian Little, interim chairman of the Students' Council, laid the plan before a meeting of all students of Victoria College.

The precedent-setting plan is in sharp contrast with the traditional concept of Frosh Week, which calls for pranks and practical jokes galore as college upperclassmen "initiate" first-year students into college life.

TRADITIONAL MARCH First half of the scheme calls for the traditional march of the freshmen through the streets of Victoria in their regalia to be slightly modified

—this year they are being asked to carry banners of many of the 22 agencies of the United Appeal.

The parade will last about two hours, and is tentatively scheduled for Thursday afternoon.

No route has been set, as the parade usually meanders at the whim of the marchers. In the past it has wandered through department stores, stopped buses and the Empress Hotel.

Brightly-colored yellow-and-blue hats with tall blue feathers, and placards bearing the name, age, marital status and other vital information about the student, are compulsory dress for Frosh all week, and will be worn during the march.

They will be dug out again by Frosh who participate in the United Appeal's residential canvass in October. Canvassing is being arranged on a basis of friendly rivalry between Frosh and the upperclassmen who they outnumber nearly two to one.

"LIFE SAVER" The plan to offer the services of college students to the United Appeal, described as a "life saver" by Mr. Fairclough whose department is desperately short of canvassers, was cooked up by worried Students' Council officials anxious to make Frosh Week beneficial to the community, and was kept a secret until today's meeting.

"This is to be a new kind of Frosh Week," acting chairman Brian Little announced, "with college spirit and community spirit as the instigator and end purpose of it all."

Besides the parade through town, other events are on the cards for this week.

FREE DANCE Tuesday evening there will be a free dance at Gordon Head where Frosh and upperclassmen will be introduced, as well as being given a corn supper. The only string attached is that Frosh must wear their hats and placards to get in.

Campus clubs will have Wednesday for themselves as they conduct an all-day membership drive with booths set up around the college to compete for the services of new students.

A week-long regulation will be in force requiring every Frosh to buy coffee for five upperclassmen, who must sign a receipt.

FRIDAY DANCE The annual Frosh dance will be held Friday evening, after which Frosh are allowed to doff their official garb, being recognized as full members of the university community.

Frosh unlucky enough to be caught breaking any-of-the multitudinous regulations imposed by upperclassmen are liable to trial at the frosh dance by the kangaroo court, a body of senior students which summons offending freshmen and finds them guilty after a "fair" trial.

Sentences usually involve some vigorous and embarrassing activity.

To guard themselves against the accusation that they never acquit anyone, officials of the kangaroo court have this year widely advertised the fact that any offender will be found not guilty if his trial takes place during a solar eclipse and is attended by Khrushchev carrying Churchill piggyback.

A color film of South America will be shown by George Willis at a meeting of Victoria Travel Education Club in the YMCA hall Wednesday, at 8 p.m. Miss Shirley Reason will entertain at the piano and Richard Parkinson at the rhapsodic chord organ.

J. Christie will speak on the storing and winter care of tubers at the regular meeting of the Victoria Begonia Society in the City Hall this Wednesday at 8 p.m.

Civil Defence headquarters today denied any knowledge of the sounding of air-raid warning sirens.

A resident of Westdown Road this morning complained of hearing the "take-cover" warning.

"I think it's terrible they can play around with them like this without first telling us—unless, of course, it's the real thing," he said.

"We haven't got anything going on," a CD spokesman said. "People could be hearing the fire siren."

Victoria Boys' Band will meet at Gorge Vale Scout Hall, 1123 Colville, Tuesday at 6:30 p.m.

A scow and cargo belonging to B.C. Forest Products Ltd. sank to deck level in the upper harbor early today while being towed to a ship at Ogden Point.

The cargo was undamaged, a company official said. Combined weight of the scow and cargo was 300 tons.

TEATIME 'STICKHANDLING'

Montreal Canadiens obviously enjoyed their brush with "a little bit of old England" Sunday, but the National Hockey League club got down to serious work this morning as training camp swung into high gear at Memorial Arena. Traditional tea-and-crumpet repast Sunday involved vice-president Ken Reardon, who poured for centre Jean Beliveau, and Bernie Geoffrion, who seemed quite willing to give the crumpets a try.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Ever Since Eve, Women Have Worried About Weight

Ever since Eve bit into the apple, wriggled into a fig leaf and discovered that it was a bit tight across the hips, women have been worrying about their weight. They have followed all sorts of diets, crazy ones as well as sensible ones.

It took Adam a long time to catch up with the reducing bug, but now millions of men have joined the calorie-counting brigade. Sadly, many of the boys who so long scoffed at the general inability of women to stick to a diet are not doing much better themselves.

Many experts agree that the psychological need for eating pleasure is one of the main reasons for diet breaking. The aesthetic satisfaction derived from food is important, just as nutrition is. Few people can be deprived of its pleasure for long. Practically any determined dieter can stick to a restricted food intake for a little while, whether it be a fat diet or well-balanced but rather dull, restricted menus, but sooner or later the craving for taste treats becomes irresistible. Therefore, the weight so painfully lost is quickly regained and the dieter has the whole thing to do over again—and again—and again.

The permanent maintenance of an attractive, slender figure is not a "sometime" thing. It calls for permanent changes in eating habits. The method, which does lead to permanent weight control, is to learn the calorie values of foods, eat a well-balanced diet, but make some slight changes in your eating habits. These slight changes can result in substantial calories saving without impairing your enjoyment of food, and will assure you a steady loss of weight. Use herbs and spices to replace the thick cream sauces and gravies; use the broiler instead of the skillet; eat unsugared or fresh fruits instead of rich desserts; eat smaller helpings, drink powdered, fat free milk instead of whole milk, and take advantage of one of the low-calorie salad dressings.

The point I am making is that a few simple changes in your habits of eating, adopted permanently, will assure you a good figure.

If you would like to have my calorie chart, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 36. Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

DEAR ABBY

Hurray for Whistlers!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I think I am the woman whose neighbors wroth you to criticize her for whistling for her five children instead of calling them by name. Thank heaven my neighbors don't have anything worse than that on me. Imagine the fun they could have if I were caught jollying around with the meter man! I want to explain: Several years ago I had an operation on my vocal chords, and I was warned never to strain my voice. So that's why I whistle for my children. Thanks for letting me defend myself.

MRS. T. M. D.

DEAR ABBY: What's wrong with whistling for the kids? When I whistle for mine, all six of them plus two collies answer me. I have taught my youngsters to whistle because it is a great help if we should get separated from one another at fairs, on crowded beaches, in department stores or at football games. Thanks to our family whistle we have never lost a child.

WHISTLING PARENT

DEAR ABBY: Your item about the "family" whistle brought back memories. We had a special family whistle to call each other. If it hadn't been for that my two sons never would have found each other behind the lines during World War II.

PROUD MOM

DEAR ABBY: I have an 83-year-old grandmother on my mail route who can produce the shrillest whistle by sticking two fingers in her mouth and blowing. She has caught me many times when I was already a quarter of a mile down the road. I think being able to whistle like that is a big help.

MAIL CARRIER

DEAR ABBY: I am 47, and our "family whistle" is now in use for the third generation. Three notes. One long and two shorts, started when my beloved parents, in their best years, summoned us children home from play.

Years later, lonely, blue, discouraged and almost desolate, I trod the busy streets of a strange eastern city. Like a miracle, above the traffic noises I heard three notes. True and clear! One long and two shorts. Stopped in my tracks, I waited breathlessly. Then—again! Much nearer. Suddenly I located the source. In the cross-walk, striding as fast as his long legs would Going over "special names" list in the United Appeal campaign with Mrs. W. C. Mearns, centre, are Mrs. H. P. R. Brown, left, and Mrs. Lloyd McKenzie. Others on the committee are Mrs. E. H. Codewill, Mrs. C. H. Wheaton, Mrs. Hugh Stephen, Mrs. C. F.

Dunn, Mrs. A. E. Walters, Mrs. R. A. Lawrie, Mrs. F. A. E. Manning, Mrs. George Gregory, Mrs. Alan Ker, Mrs. George Robson and Mrs. R. B. Wilson. Target for this group is $40,000.

Women Spearhead New Canvass

Something new has been added to the United Appeal campaign this year and, judging by its participants, its success is certain.

The campaign's board of directors wanted a group that would concentrate on obtaining support from leading citizens of the city—and for this important assignment they prescribed the woman's touch.

Mrs. W. C. Mearns was asked to co-chair this special committee that will make a residential canvass of people that the board think "should be the backbone of the community."

She heads a committee of 14 community-minded women who, for the next few days, will forsake their favorite golf courses and concentrate on ringing door bells. The drive will precede the regular residential canvass.

Co-chairing with Mrs. Mearns is F. A. E. Manning, who, with a similar committee of men, will set out to match the women's efforts. If the efficiency with which the women's group is already "on the job" is any indication—the men will have their work cut out for them.

Both Mrs. Mearns and her "crew" are "old hands" at campaigning for the United Appeal—or, to call it by its old name—the Community Chest.

Says Mrs. Mearns: "We pack a wealth of experience between us. Most of us have done a lot of canvassing in past years. We're highly confident that we'll go way over our target."

She talks of the necessity of the Appeal making its quota this year with an almost fanatical zeal.

"This year's quota is lower than last year and we simply have to make it. If we don't it's almost certain that the Chest will fold and there'll be another 22 separate appeals in town. Nobody wants that, do they?"

The answer to that one must surely be, "No." The October end results will confirm it—one way or the other.

Newlyweds Honeymoon in Nassau

Now honeymooning in Nassau, B.W.I. are Mr. and Mrs. John Gerald George Underhill.

White chrysanthemums decorated St. Matthias' Anglican Church when Archdeacon A. E. de L. Nunns solemnized their marriage on Saturday afternoon. Nosegays of tiny white chrysanthemums marked the pews.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George B. Bigelow, 995 Terrace Avenue. Groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Underhill of Vancouver.

Entering the church on the arm of her father, the bride was lovely in a floor-length gown of silk-faced satin. Insert of hand-clipped Chantilly lace enhanced the fitted bodice and a front panel of the same lace highlighted the bell skirt. Her bouffant chapel-length veil of French illusion tulle mistled from a coronet of seed pearls and crystal beads. White rosebuds encircled the cluster of gardenias in the bouquet. For "something old" she wore her maternal grandmother's pearls.

Bell shaped overskirts, added to beauty of Copen blue-faith gowns worn by matron of honor, Mrs. Michael Bazett, and bridesmaids, Miss Patricia Darters and Miss Virginia Bigelow, the bride's sister. Tiny veils of blue tulle filmed from headpieces of Copen blue velvet. All carried cascade bouquets of white feathered chrysanthemums.

Susan Bigelow, tiny-niece of the bride, made a charming flower girl in her frock of Keith Liddle. Organ music, Copen blue velvet that had, an overskirt of silk organza. She wore a circlet of tiny white chrysanthemums in her hair and carried a miniature spray of white feathered chrysanthemums.

Charles Underhill was best man for his brother and usher. The new Mrs. Underhill donned a suit of Elizabeth blue French wool boucle and accessories en tone. White rosebud corsage was pinned on the lapel of her suit. Newlyweds will make their home in Vancouver.

Pink rosebuds topped the three-tier wedding cake that centred the head table. Tall white candles in silver candelabra and an heirloom cloth of Italian cutwork added to decor. Rooms were decorated with flowers in autumn tones. Leaving by plane for Nassau, the new Mrs. Underhill donned a suit of Elizabeth blue French wool boucle and accessories en tone. White rosebud corsage was pinned on the lapel of her suit. Newlyweds will make their home in Vancouver.

Newfoundland Documentary at 10 on 6, 2; Four Series Starting

By PHIL LEE, Times TV Editor

IN SPITE of the fact that Ed Sullivan has possibly ruined circus-la-TV for years for the masses, I must admit that I enjoyed the new NBC-TV "International Showtime" series opener, Friday night-the circus

Schumann from Copenhagen, Denmark.

By the time the hour was over and the children and

I had marvelled at the acrobats, the clowns, the superb horsemanship of Albert, Pauline and Max Schumann aboard their highly-trained Arabian steeds, laughed with ridiculous fervor at the attempts of "volunteers" to ride the fractious mules, I couldn't help but think that the series may prove to be popular indeed.

For one thing, the various shows, each emanating from various parts of the world, will serve to teach the children and their parents how the other half lives and, in reality, how closely bound together we all are in spite of geography, speech and ethnic backgrounds.

Veteran actor Dan Amelio handled the hosting job well, being free and easy without being overbearing.

Next week it's on to watch the figure skating carnival at Mainz, Germany, as produced by Maxine and Ernst Bauer, who, in previous days, were pair champions of the world—quite breathtaking.

After viewing the first hour of the new "Defenders" series, Thursday night on the CBC-TV network,

I wondered if all spectators would feel as I felt—that one cheerfully could have done without the character of Kenneth Preston, (played by Robert Reed), son of Lawrence Preston (E. G. Marshall), the veteran trial lawyer, and that so much more could have been made of the ideals behind the theme of the whole.

Surely it isn't necessary for an embryo lawyer to go about threatening to punch assistant DA's in the snout? How much better it would have been for son and audience alike if the finer points of law had been explained quietly to the youth by his father.

Nonetheless, the yarn about the aftermath of a mercy-killing proved not uninteresting.

OTTAWA (CP) — The army said today that Canadian signallers stationed at Elisabethville and Kamina, two of the hot spots in Katanga recently, are "safe and unharmed."

... 'NO POWER SELLOUT'

The Peace will come Oct. 11 when tenders are returnable for the first of three diversion tunnels.

"We fully expect work to go ahead on the first tunnel through the winter," he said.

Mr. Bennett repeated the assertion of the B.C. Energy Board that costs of power from the Columbia and Peace are virtually the same, and his own plan to develop both projects.

But with conclusion of Columbia treaty negotiations in 1960, "it was apparently resolved by certain ministers of the federal government that the progress of power development in B.C. must be reduced to a head-on collision between the two projects."

"The viewpoint appeared to hold that only one project could proceed and that somehow if either one failed to proceed the fault must lie with the B.C. government."

BOTH NEEDED

"Our position is simply this: we believe that B.C. will require and should have both projects as soon as it is humanly possible to construct them."

But the fact is that Ottawa is against the Peace because it is against B.C.'s plan for full economic development, said the premier.

"I say to Mr. Fulton: B.C. will not stand for this sellout of our economic development as long as I am entrusted by the people of B.C. to protect and fight for their interests."

"BRUTAL MANNER"

"Ottawa will never sell out the interests of B.C. in this callous and brutal manner."

"I challenge him to leave the protection of Eastern Canada and come before this group and tell why they are trying to sell you out."

Mr. Bennett hit back at Mr. Fulton for suggesting that the Columbia deal was "too big" for him and frightening him.

"Today two projects are too big for Mr. Fulton," said the premier.

UNMASKED

"He now stands unmasked with his true intentions revealed only four days ago in the House of Commons that Canada was thinking of blocking the Peace River development because it would interfere with navigation on the Peace and Mackenzie Rivers."

The premier continued: "My seven-year-old grandson can tell Mr. Fulton that by regulating the flow of the Peace this will actually improve navigation on the whole Mackenzie River system. Everybody knows that and so does Ottawa."

"How can any minister say they will use any act to stop development? We don't do that in B.C. These things should stand on their merits. What right has any minister to threaten this province? No right at all."

"I am sure the people of B.C. will repudiate him when the time comes."

Mr. Bennett said the Columbia treaty will give the U.S. more water storage in 15 years than it has been able to build in 30 years in its own country.

The treaty gives the U.S. for virtually nothing the water control for a project as big as the Grand Coulee dam, he said.

He quoted U.S. secretary for the Interior Charles Udall as saying the treaty will give the U.S. for $170,000,000 power for which it would have to pay $710,000,000 on its own.

LIBBY DAM

It also gives the U.S. the right to build a dam at Libby, Montana, which it has sought for years.

"That is the little bit which Canada is giving away under the terms of this treaty, and what are we getting? Sixty-four million dollars in compensation for our flooded land plus half of the so-called downstream benefits."

"This is the package the government of Canada has been pressing B.C. to accept."

"This is the deal which the jealous, and in my opinion, exremely naive chief negotiator, Mr. Fulton, wants B.C. to buy."

"We say this is not good enough either for B.C. which has the most to lose, or for Canada. We agree that the treaty can be made to work but only if potential benefits to Canada are brought back into balance with the certain sacrifices of Canada."

Yet, said the premier, Mr. Fulton maintains all this is made worthwhile by the return of cheap power to B.C. from the Columbia benefits.

"By selling this surplus Columbia power at 5 mills per kilowatt hour here is what we can do:

"We can build High Arrow, we can build Duncan, we can build Mica Creek, we can install the generators at Mica and other points to produce over two million horsepower at no cost to B.C. or Canada."

"REAL MEANING"

"That is the real meaning of cheap power because nothing is cheaper than something that is free."

Mr. Bennett produced a new set of figures for the cost of this downstream benefit power to B.C., far higher than Mr. Fulton's 3.77 mill estimate, even higher than the Columbia power costs quoted in the B.C. Energy Board report.

"In the first year of development, cost (including transmission from the U.S.) would not be 3.77 mills but 8.65 mills," he said.

"In 1970 the cost would dip to 4.34 mills, not a bad figure, but for every year thereafter right through to 1985 the price keeps going up 7.80 mills. The weighted average cost of this 'low-cost' downstream power-to-be would be 6.35 mills."

The new figures were drawn up especially for the premier by the energy board. They are only for downstream benefits, not full cost of development, and do not include allowance for power to be generated in B.C. through the scheme.

"I say that by pressing B.C. to accept this package the federal government was pressing, whether or not it realized what it was doing, for high-cost power in Canada, low-cost power in the U.S., and therefore the very real export of jobs and industries that properly belong in Canada."

"REAL LOW COST"

"By resisting the federal pressure, B.C. is protecting our industrial potential, blocking the export of thousands of potential jobs, preserving our prospects for real 'low-cost' power."

Mr. Bennett's speech was mostly in written form and concluded with a glowing prediction for a boom in Prince George because of the Peace project.

"As for the effects," he said, "I can only say that I believe they will exceed even the fondest dreams of all of us who believe so strongly in the need for this project."

"Here we will change the geography and climate of an immense area when we impound the world's largest man-made lake behind the Portage dam. Here we will see great new resource industries, new commerce, and vast new tourist industry."

COMPANION KILLED

Explores in Brazil Deny Warning Given of Danger

RIO DE JANEIRO, Brazil (Reuters) — Two explorers from Britain denied Saturday that they had been warned of danger in the remote jungle area where their 26-year-old companion was killed by savage Indians.

Canadian-born John Hemming, 26, and Christopher Lambert, 25, said they were told there was no danger from Indians in the region between Para and Mato Grosso states, where Richard Mason was killed nearly two weeks ago.

Hemming and Lambert made their statements at a press conference after Mason's funeral at the British cemetery here.

After a barrage of questions, Hemming's father, Lt.-Col. H. Harold Hemming, ended the interview saying: "These boys have just buried their friend."

Col. Hemming, a native of Toronto and a graduate of McGill University in Montreal, was a banking and financial authority on mining before becoming chairman of the board of the Municipal Journal Limited, in London.

His son worked for a time for a magazine in Toronto and attended McGill for a year.

Mason—who was leading a 10-man expedition sponsored by Britain's geographical society—was clubbed to death by Indians while hunting alone away from the party's main camp.

His body was flown here Friday after being carried to the Brazilian air force emergency base at Cachimbo by a ground party, which hacked its way through 20 miles of dense jungle.

The party which located the body found eight arrows protruding from it, and a pile of clubs.

Unbiased Counting Asked on Tourists

An unbiased provincial agency such as the department of trade and commerce should take over the job of compiling tourist figures, it was suggested today.

W. E. Hawkins, Victoria and Island publicity bureau commissioner, said he will carry the suggestion to the first board meeting of the newly formed B.C. Tourist Association.

NO PADDING

"We badly need to have this in the hands of an unbiased agency so that everyone is sure that the figures are not being padded by local people," the trade department, which puts out statistics on various industries could include the tourist industry figures in its reports."

Mr. Hawkins said his conservative estimate of last year's tourist inflow to Vancouver Island was 900,000 to 1,000,000 visitors.

"With the average visitor staying three days and spending $15 a day, that's a $45,000, 000 gross business."

"Next year, with up to 500, 000 extra visitors from the Seattle World's Fair, the Island faces a pretty big business—if we can handle it."

Mr. Hawkins said his estimate of 1960-61 tourist business was based on the 1,424, 650 passengers handled during 1959-60 by all the ferries serving Vancouver Island and Trans-Canada Air Lines.

LOCAL TRAFFIC

He acknowledged that a sizeable proportion would be local traffic between Island and mainland points.

"But I think that it is a conservative estimate to figure the actual number of visitors during the past year at 900,000 to 1,000,000."

"I haven't counted the 75,000 TCA passengers nor the reasonable guess of a 20 per cent increase in traffic since 1959-60."

Hungry Woman Faints At Free Food Stall

Officials said a woman collapsed from hunger Saturday when she was standing in line at the Victoria free food stall.

Mrs. E. E. Harper, convenor of the stall, said the woman's husband was in jail and she had three children at home. Persons obtaining food at the stall must first be "cleared" by welfare officers.

Mrs. Harper said the woman "fainted for want of food" and was carried inside where she was given a cup of tea and a hamper of groceries.

200 LINED UP

She was one of 200 persons who lined up at the downtown stall for a three-day supply of perishables and a week's supply of staples.

Fruit and vegetables are given to the stall and donations of money are used to buy meat, powdered milk and margarine. The stall opens once a month.

Mrs. Harper said a hamper of groceries was also given a youth who was out of work and "thin as a rail."

'DEBBIE' HITS U.K.

LONDON (Reuters) — Eleven persons were killed and scores hurt Sunday as gales from the outer edge of hurricane Debbie swept across the British Isles.

They left behind a trail of damaged houses, dismantled telephone lines, fallen trees and flooded pastures.

Ireland suffered most from the weather, with gales reaching 103 miles an hour in the Lough Lerry area of Northern Ireland. All the deaths were in Ireland.

'Esther' Boils Up

MIAMI (UPI) — Hurricane Esther, the most violent storm of the season with sustained winds of 150 miles an hour, rolled heavy surf into the eastern Bahamas tonight and boiled onward in the general direction of the U.S. mainland.

Weathermen said it was too early yet to determine if the storm would hit the eastern seaboard, but warned all areas along the Atlantic to keep posted on future advisories.

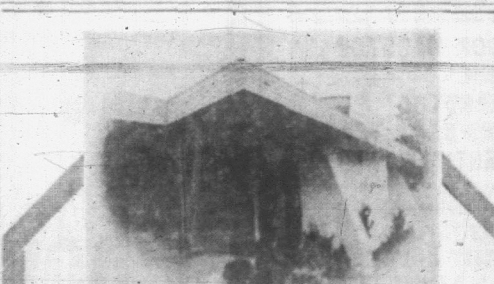

Small craft at Bermuda, the Virgin Islands and North Puerto Rico were warned to secure in port to avoid the heavy sea swells kicked up by Esther, which probably had wind gusts up to 200 mph.

175 Killed In Japan

TOKYO (AP) — Typhoon Nancy was blowing itself out in the north Pacific today after cutting a swath of death and destruction across Japan.

The human toll rose to 175 dead, 18 missing, 3,186 injured and more than 600,000 homeless. Crop damage was estimated at $130,000,000 and property loss at another $100,000,000.

The storm struck a blow at the Japanese economy and the price of fish in Tokyo, a city which escaped the brunt of the wind, rose 20 per cent.

DAG DEEPLY INVOLVED IN CONGO CRISIS

He Worked Hard for Peace

By UP International
Dag Hjalmar Agne Carl Hammarskjold, a quiet unassuming bachelor of 56, in his eight years in office turned the post of secretary-general from the world's top civil service post into a position of world-wide executive power.

The United Nations force in the Congo was his creation and his prestige in the past year has ebbed and flowed with the success of its operations.

He believed that a peaceful, unified Congo was vital not only to the peace of Africa, but to the peace of the world. And his work for peace—in the Congo, during the Hungarian revolt, the Suez crisis and the endless crises of the cold war—won him vast admiration.

But the entry of the United Nations into the Congo last year and its support of the president of the central government, Joseph Kasavubu, against its premier, the slain Patrice Lumumba, aroused bitter opposition from the Soviet bloc and misgivings among many of the new African nations.

Opposed by Soviet
The Soviets charged the United Nations with supporting a western-oriented regime against the leftist leaning Lumumba and have consistently in the past year called for Hammarskjold's removal from the post of secretary general.

Hammarskjold's predecessor, Trygve Lie, called the post "the most impossible job in the world." But Hammarskjold has carried his burden calmly at all times. "The man has icicles in his veins," a statesman once said of him.

'Dark Horse'

Hammarskjold was born in Jonkoping, Sweden, into an aristocratic family which for generations had given public servants to Sweden.

Hammarskjold, who had been deputy foreign minister of Sweden, was the "dark horse" candidate of Britain and France when the security council was deadlocked over a successor to Norway's Trygve Lie in 1953. He was re-elected unanimously for his second term in 1957.

As secretary-general he worked 16 hours a day. For recreation, on the rare occasions when he could get it, he climbed mountains.

Of all the crises Hammarskjold has had to deal with, it was in the Congo that he acted boldest.

With the United Nations force actually taking the initiative to prevent the secession of Katanga, a new chapter in the history of the United Nations opened. It was to see that chapter clearly and justly written that Dag Hammarskjold last week flew to the Congo to meet Moise Tshombe, president of Katanga Province.

Hammarskjold once said: "Much of what is done will one day prove to be of little avail. That is no excuse for the failure to act in accordance with our best understanding."

On the mantelpiece of his apartment in New York, in defiance of this expression of the ineffectiveness of human action is a picture of Mr. Everest and the inscription: "So you may climb to greater heights."

Crucial UN Session Convenes on Tuesday

By MILTON BESSER

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—The UN General Assembly convenes Tuesday for what diplomats expect will be the most crucial session of its 16-year history. Some say its future as a peace-making organization is at stake.

Already on its crowded list of issues to be debated are such questions as Communist China's admission, testing nuclear weapons, disarmament, and The Congo.

New Zealand, with the support of the United States, took the initiative on the Red China issue by proposing Sunday that the General Assembly debate the question of Chinese representation.

The United States, while still resisting any effort to oust Nationalist China, dropped its 10-year-long strategy of getting the Assembly to postpone the Red China question. It was felt the U.S. lacked the votes to keep the question off the agenda this year.

The U.S. or one of its supporters is expected to seek a delay on the decision by creating a study committee on Chinese seating which would report back next year.

Support Debate
The U.S. will also support moves for priority to a debate on the need for a treaty on banning of nuclear weapons tests—under effective international control.

Attempts to negotiate such a treaty at Geneva collapsed when the Soviet Union resumed testing in the atmosphere. The U.S. resumed testing underground, but President Kennedy made clear his country's willingness to negotiate a treaty "of the widest possible scope."

On disarmament, the United States and the Soviet Union have failed to reach agreement even on the makeup of a negotiating body, let alone the substance of the issue.

Adding to the gloomy picture is the situation in the Congo, where the fighting in Katanga has dampened hopes for unifying that country on a peaceful basis.

Peace Appeal Uses Photos Of Children

All parents and grandparents should send a photo of their children or grandchildren to leaders of the United States, Soviet Russia, Britain and France, says Bruce Young of North Vancouver.

Each photo should be accompanied by the statement: "Here is my Vote for Peace," said 24-year-old Mr. Young. "The leaders of the great powers must be made aware of the fact that the vast majority of the world's people are against turning the earth into a radioactive wasteland."

NO POLITICS
"This is not a political campaign. It is backed only by persons interested in saving humanity."

Mr. Young said his campaign in Vancouver has already won the support of the B.C. Committee for Radiation Hazards.

"I want to spread it to Victoria and other parts of the province," he declared. "It would be a forceful and emphatic way of letting world leaders know what the man in the street thinks about the alarming increase of world tensions and the renewal of A-bomb tests."

Canadian production of wood cellulose increased from 363,000 tons in 1958 to 10,100,000 tons in 1959.

PUBLIC FIRMS 'SABOTAGED' BY TORIES

OTTAWA (CP) — Saskatchewan Premier T. C. Douglas said Saturday the present Conservative government is waging a steady campaign to "sabotage" publicly owned corporations in Canada.

In a speech to the Russell riding nomination meeting for the New Democratic Party, Mr. Douglas said the government of Prime Minister Diefenbaker "has done more than any other government in the last 40 years to weaken the public sector of our economy."

Canadians had better be on guard to keep the "little bit" they already own in the public sector, he said.

WITH ONLY BRIEF LOOK BACK 20,000 Canadian Jaycees Mark Silver Anniversary

By HAL JONES

Junior Chamber of Commerce members across Canada started celebrating "Jaycee Week" today. The title may be inordinately short but behind those two words is a history of 25 years encompassing some 300 individual units with a total membership over 20,000.

Celebrating the silver anniversary of the Canada Junior Chamber of Commerce will not be such a tear-jerking event as one could expect from other organizations. Reason is the age limits governing membership (between 18 and 40). Not many of today's members can recall "the good old days."

They don't waste time looking back into the mists of the past, they just look steadily ahead.

But a silver anniversary comes only once so a quick look back is in order.

The first Jaycee unit was established in Winnipeg in 1923, seven years after the first unit in the world was started by a group of young men in St. Louis, Missouri.

Second Unit Formed Here in 1927

The second Canadian unit was formed right here in Victoria in 1927.

During these formative years there was no such thing as district, provincial, national or international bodies of Jaycees. Junior Chamber was known only as autonomous local organizations in this country.

The movement grew, and in 1936 15 delegates of existing chambers, plus proxies from 11 other existing units, met in Toronto and drew up a constitution to formally found the Junior Chamber of Commerce of Canada.

The three major aims set out in the constitution are:

PARACHUTIST DROWNS

NEWBURY, Mass. (AP)—A sports parachutist intending to land with a birthday cake among a group of socially prominent Bostonians at a birthday party on Plum Island fell in the ocean and was drowned Sunday. George K. Dolloff, 31, of Newburyport, father of three daughters, was pulled 150 yards to shore but mouth-to-mouth respiration failed to revive him.

Girl, 5, Strangled

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—Foster parents Sunday led authorities to the body of a five-year-old girl, dumped in a gulch after the couple said she had strangled on wire used to bind her for disciplinary purposes. The little girl, Carolyn Page, was a court ward of Clarence Van Buren, 40, and his wife, Ruth, 41. The girl was given into their care because she had been mistreated by her own mother.

VEGAS STRIP RIPPED BY STORM

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP)—Emergency crews from three states patched up damage today done by the city's most destructive thunderstorm. It was accompanied by high winds that ripped along the plush gambling hotel strip.

One person was killed. Thirty-one were injured, one of them critically. Damage was estimated between $1,500,000 to $2,000,000.

Power to the Nevada test site north of here—scene of current nuclear blasts—was cut off briefly, then restored at a reduced rate pending repairs.

Iceland's President Visits First Colony

GIMLI, Man. (CP)—Iceland's President Asgeir Asgeirsson visited Canada's oldest Icelandic settlement Sunday during his current tour of Manitoba. He placed a wreath at the cairn commemorating the arrival Oct. 21, 1875, of the first Icelandic settlers to this Lake Winnipeg fishing community about 60 miles north of Winnipeg.

Later, addressing a crowd of several hundred at Gimli Park, Mr. Asgeirsson told of the hardships that forced the first settlers to flee their native land.

Epidemics and earthquakes had ravaged Iceland, killing many and ruining many farms. They came to Manitoba seeking a better life.

Dr. George Johnson, provincial health minister, told of the first few hard years at the settlement at Gimli. The settlers landed so late in the first year that they had no time to grow fresh vegetables.

Scurvy struck the settlement during the first winter and before the settlers had time to recover they were flooded out. The flood was followed immediately by a

'Up to Public' Says Chant

The B.C. government is anxious to carry out the public's wishes for or against "kitchen style" vinyl flooring in the corridors of the Legislative Buildings, Public Works Minister W. N. Chant said Sunday.

"We hope the public will visit the Buildings and judge the new flooring for themselves," said Mr. Chant. "If they don't like it, we shall do something else."

"But the old ceramic floor tiles cannot be left as they are. They are deteriorating fast and they are dangerous to the public and to employees in the Buildings."

Mr. Chant was answering criticisms from newspaperman-historian James K. Nesbitt, who says the old ceramic floor tiles are part of the history of the Buildings. He threatened to defend them with an antique rifle.

"It would be very difficult to replace them with new ceramic tiles," Mr. Chant said, "and we believe the linoleum tiles are the best answer to the problem. They will be a dark maroon color and I don't think they will be out of place."

"But we are anxious to conform with public opinion," Mr. Chant left here today for Revelstoke and Kamloops.

WOMAN BREAKS HIP

Judgment Reserved In Suit Over Fall

An action for damages against the Oak Bay Beach Hotel was concluded in B.C. Supreme Court Friday after a two-day hearing.

Mr. Justice R. A. Wootton reserved judgment in a claim for general and special damages against the hotel by Mrs. Florence Ashworth, 2455 Beach Drive.

HIP BROKEN

Mrs. Ashworth claimed that a slippery floor in the hotel lounge caused her to fall and break her hip when she was entering the lounge with her husband, Arthur Ashworth, and two friends, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Taylor, 30 Boyd Street.

The accident occurred on Sunday, June 12, 1960. Unable to attend the hearing because of ill health, Mrs. Taylor made a legal statement which was read to the court. She said the four persons were entering the hotel lounge from the garden terrace when Mrs. Ashworth fell.

NO BRANDY

Mrs. Taylor said Mrs. Ashworth was in great pain and she asked the dining room hostess if she could be given a glass of brandy.

IRISH HELD

New Battle In Congo

USUMBURA, Ruanda-Urundi (AP)—Private radio messages said fighting broke out today between United Nations and Katanga forces in Albertville, on Lake Tanganyika northeast of Elisabethville.

This would expand a five-day war previously waged at three cities along a line through the heart of the rebellious province of the Congo—Elisabethville, Jadotville and Kamina.

Katanga sources reported the action erupted near the Albertville railway station between Katanga gendarmes (police) and members of an Indian UN garrison which totals about 1,400 men.

LEOPOLDVILLE (Reuters)—A company of Irish troops held prisoner at Jadotville, 75 miles northwest of Elisabethville, is being treated well by its Katangan captors, a United Nations spokesman said today in this Congo capital.

DUBLIN (AP)—Ireland was plunged anew into anxious foreboding today as reports that Irish troops had been overwhelmed in Katanga.

The report, flashed to Dublin from Leopoldville Sunday night, dashed the rejoicing after a government announcement said it had been informed that a truce had been arranged in Jadotville and that Irish casualties were light.

NEW YORK (AP)—The French government has told the United States it will not participate in any allied conference with the Soviet Union on Berlin and Germany under present circumstances, the New York Times says today.

It is understood, a Washington dispatch to The Times adds, that this message was conveyed to President Kennedy personally in the presence of the British and West German foreign ministers by French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville last Friday.

They also say Couve de Murville told the Allied leaders his government believed the Soviet Union is trying to impose its own solution of the German problem on the West.

He said it could be stopped from doing so not by proposing a four-power conference but by warning Moscow any attempt to interfere with the West's rights and obligations to supply the military and civilian population of Berlin would lead to war.

Policy on Power Unchanged—Dief

NEXT LICKS BY FULTON?

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—The Chamber of Commerce here has invited Justice Minister-Fulton to explain the federal government's stand in the Columbia-Power controversy.

The chamber wired its invitation to Mr. Fulton today after Premier Bennett of British Columbia challenged Mr. Fulton Saturday to "leave the protection of Eastern Canada and come to Prince George and say the same things he has been saying there about the Peace."

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today there has been no change in the government's policy on power development of the Columbia River.

He was replying in the Commons to Opposition Leader Pearson and asked whether there were any grounds for a reported statement by Premier Bennett of British Columbia that Ottawa would "give in" to the province and permit the export of Columbia River power.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the federal government's policy had been announced on a number of occasions and there was no change in it.

Quebec's Attitude 'Incredible'

OTTAWA (UPI)—Health Minister J. Waldo Monteith today described as "almost incredible" Quebec Premier Jean Lesage's refusal to co-operate with the federally-appointed Royal Commission on Health Services.

Lesage based his refusal on charges that the commission infringes on provincial rights.

Monteith, speaking to the Eastern Ontario Dental Association, said the commission's terms of reference made it absolutely clear that the federal government recognized provincial rights in the health field. This same recognition was the basis for such programs as the national hospital insurance plan and national health grants, he said.

Monteith told the dentists at a luncheon that, in studying the commission's recommendations, the federal government would work from the basic premise that the patient-doctor relationship must be preserved.

Flying to Meet Katanga Leader In Peace Bid

NDOLA, Northern Rhodesia (Reuters)—Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold of the United Nations was killed today when a plane bringing him here from Leopoldville crashed into the African bush.

SEVERAL EXPLOSIONS —SURVIVOR

NDOLA, Northern Rhodesia (UPI)—The only survivor of the plane crash in which Dag Hammarskjold died said tonight there were several explosions aboard the plane before it crashed. The UN secretary-general had changed his mind about wanting to land at Ndola, the survivor, a UN security guard, said, and just before the scheduled landing at Ndola told the pilot to change course.

Hammarskjold's body was found in the wreckage in a grove of young trees seven miles north of here. The bodies of 13 of the 14 persons aboard were recovered late in the day. One gravely injured survivor—his identity unknown—was taken to a hospital.

Most of those who died were burned beyond recognition, but Hammarskjold's body was scarcely marked. A rescue worker said his body bore only "a small wound in the neck" and that he was wearing his identity tag.

Canadian diplomats in New York said their information from the UN was that the crash was accidental; there was no early indication of sabotage.

Owners of the plane said they are trying to find out whether the DC-6B may have been shot down by a jet fighter from Katanga.

Officials of the Swedish Trans Air Company, charter operators who supplied the four-engine plane for the UN secretary-general, said this seemed a possibility. There was no confirmation from any source.

JETS ACTIVE

Jet fighters of President Moise Tshombe's Katanga air force have been active in the clashes between UN troops and Katangan forces opposing them.

The unarmed plane was damaged by machine-gun fire as it took off from the airport at Elisabethville Friday, but got aloft on three engines and landed safely at Leopoldville. There one engine was replaced and the others were checked for damage from stray bullets.

In New York, UN sources said a Canadian member of the secretary-general's staff, Alice Lalonde of Montreal, was aboard the plane.

The wreckage of the plane was still smoldering when the rescue party reached it. It appeared to have hit the ground at high speed after crashing through tree-tops.

The plane shattered into several pieces on impact. Two of the plane's four engines were ripped out of the fuselage.

A Negro woodsman advised Northern Rhodesian authorities of the crash several hours after Hammarskjold's plane.

COALITION SEEN

Majority Lost By Adenauer; May Be Ousted

(Times News Service)

BONN—Aging Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's 12-year iron-fisted rule over West Germany is in doubt today after his Christian Democrat Party lost its absolute majority in Sunday's parliamentary elections.

But West Germany, with its powerful army and its booming economy, remains firmly in the Western camp. At the most there could be some minor changes in its outlook on the East-West struggle over Berlin.

Adenauer's party lost five per cent of its popular support and about 40 seats in the new 499-man Parliament which will hold its first meeting in mid-October.

The 85-year-old Adenauer will remain in office at least until then. But whether he will be the new chancellor of West Germany is the big question in this capital.

The chancellor must be elected by majority vote of the new Bundestag. Before it meets Oct. 17, Adenauer's party must hold talks with one of its opponents—West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt's Social Democrats or the Free Democrats.

... successor?

Both Brandt's Socialists and the Free Democrats are against Adenauer continuing as chancellor.

They say they will refuse to enter a coalition until he retires. If they force him out, his successor may be Ludwig Erhard, the economics expert whose private enterprise policies have made West Germany Europe's most powerful industrial nation.

Three-Party Gov't Plan Rejected

Today at a press conference Adenauer made it clear that he favors a coalition with the Free Democrats. He rejected a suggestion by Brandt for a government made up of the representatives of all three parties.

An all-party coalition "is not in keeping with the democratic feelings of our time," he said. Both the Socialists and the Free Democrats gained five per cent in popular vote, taking their new strength from Adenauer's party and minor parties which lost heavily.

The official provisional standing in the Bundestag (lower House) with two seats still to be contested was: Christian Democrat Party, 241; Social Democrats, 190, and Free Democrats, 66.

The standing in the previous Bundestag with two fewer seats was: Christian Democrats, 281; Social Democrats, 168, and smaller parties the rest.

The Free Democrats called for a new government under Erhard.

OTTAWA POWER POLICY CALLOUS—BENNETT

'B.C. Won't Stand for Sellout'

(See Also Page 17)

Premier Bennett denounced the Columbia River power treaty and federal Justice Minister E. David Fulton in a fiery speech at Prince George Saturday night.

In a speech to the convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of B.C., he said the treaty with the U.S. is "not good enough" but "can be made to work" if B.C. is allowed to sell all its downstream benefits to pay for construction of the three big dams.

He challenged Mr. Fulton's claim that these benefits if returned to B.C. would be the cheapest of all power.

Mr. Fulton has said this power will cost 3.77 mills; Mr.

Bennett claimed it would cost an average of 6.35 mills, and as much as 8.65 mills during the project's first year.

In a personal attack on the justice minister, the premier said Mr. Fulton was trying to block full economic development of B.C. "for the honor of his own grandiose political image."

"He will allow nothing to interfere with his own lust for political back-slapping," said Mr. Bennett.

Mr. Fulton hinted in Ottawa last week that the federal government was considering ways to block the Peace River power project, which has already been launched by the new publicly-owned B.C. Electric. This might be done under the federal Navigable Waters Protection Act, he suggested. Replied Mr. Bennett: "I say to everybody in Canada in all seriousness that this may rank as the most frivolous, destructive statement ever made in Canada's long political history."

The premier disclosed that next stage in construction of

Gave 'Selfless Best' PM Tells Commons

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today the death of Dag Hammarskjold is a "tragic day" in the history of efforts to maintain world peace.

There was a gasp on the Commons floor and in the galleries when Mr. Diefenbaker said the United Nations secretary-general is dead.

The prime minister said Mr. Hammarskjold had given his "selfless best" in the preservation of peace.

Opposition Leader Pearson said he had known Mr. Hammarskjold well for many years and had worked closely with him in the UN.

DEDICATED MAN

He was wise, selfless, sure, resolute, skilful, objective and supremely dedicated.

His tragic death should inspire all to do what they could to make sure his cause—peace—triumphed.

H. W. Herridge (Kootenay West) speaking for the CCF New Democratic Party group, said the death of Mr. Hammarskjold is "shocking and tragic news."

Mr. Hammarskjold's service to mankind had been recognized by all.

PUBLIC KEEN, SAYS PM

Centenary on 'Wheels'

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker moved today to set up the machinery for Canada's centennial celebrations in 1967.

He introduced a resolution calling for the establishment of a 10-man, national centennial administration and a 61-member national conference to co-ordinate activities and sound out various views.

He also told the House of Commons he would like to see a "national train" which would travel across the country carrying historical documents.

The prime minister said he felt the large attractions should be portable so that all Canadians could see them.

Diefenbaker said he public has sent in so many suggestions in answer to an appeal for proposals 16 months ago that it would take several billion dollars to institute them all. He said they ranged from a centennial city to a plan for wiping out special diseases.

He said a dominion-provincial centennial committee set up last year would meet here next month to go over the suggestions.

Diefenbaker said the 100th anniversary of Canada's nationhood should provide three things:

—A national salute in retrospect.

—An appraisal of the present.

—A toast to the century to come.

He said he expected much of the initiative and ideas for the celebrations to come from local levels.

"Our centennial will be a magnet to draw visitors from all around the world," he predicted.

As Admiral Bennett might paraphrase it: "Dam it! Peace River. Full speed ahead!"

In East Germany it's only the territory that's divided. In West Germany they're allowed divided opinions too.

Mister Hammarskjold died doing his job. An' that's a good epitaph for anybody.

Another Highway Victim

Accident victim of a different kind, was a six-month-old fawn struck by a car near Swartz Bay Saturday night. It was to be destroyed today at the request of the provincial game department.

The soft-eyed animal was found lying in the road by a passing motorist and brought to the city's SPCA. Another fawn with it at the time, headed off into the bush.

The young deer is seen in the picture here in an improvised stall at SPCA headquarters with Mrs. Marie Petrat. But all the loving care in the world could not help it—the creature was paralyzed as a result of the impact with the car.

Frosh Week Plays Down Pranks In Move to Help United Appeal

By LESLIE MILLIN
Times College Correspondent

Victoria College students today were asked to convert part of their freshman-hazing activities into assistance for this year's United Appeal campaign.

Floyd A. Fairclough, director of residential canvassing for the United Appeal, and Brian Little, interim-chairman of the Students' Council, laid the plan before a meeting of all students of Victoria College.

The precedent-setting plan is in sharp contrast with the traditional concept of Frosh Week, which calls for pranks and practical jokes galore as college upperclassmen "initiate" first-year students into college life.

TRADITIONAL MARCH

First half of the scheme calls for the traditional march of the freshmen through the streets of Victoria in their regalia to be slightly modified

—this year they are being asked to carry banners of many of the 22 agencies of the United Appeal.

The parade will last about two hours, and is tentatively scheduled for Thursday afternoon.

No route has been set, as the parade usually meanders at the whim of the marchers. In the past it has wandered through department stores, stopped buses and the Empress Hotel.

COMPULSORY DRESS

Brightly-colored yellow-and-blue hats with tail-blue feathers, and placards bearing the name, age, marital status and other vital information about the student, are compulsory dress for Frosh all week, and will be worn during the march.

They will be dug out again by Frosh who participate in the United Appeal's residential canvass in October. Canvassing is being arranged on a basis of friendly rivalry between Frosh and the upperclassmen who they outnumber nearly two to one.

"LIFE SAVER"

The plan to offer the services of college students to the United Appeal, described as a "life saver" by Mr. Fairclough whose department is desperately short of canvassers, was cooked up by worried Students' Council officials anxious to make Frosh Week beneficial to the community, and was kept a secret until today's meeting.

FREE DANCE

Tuesday evening there will be a free dance at Gordon Head where Frosh and upperclassmen will be introduced, as well as being given a corn supper. The only string attached is that Frosh must wear their hats and placards to get in.

Campus clubs will have Wednesday for themselves as they conduct an all-day membership drive with booths set up around the college to compete for the services of new students.

FRIDAY DANCE

The annual Frosh dance will be held Friday evening, after which Frosh are allowed to doff their official garb, being recognized as full members of the university community.

Frosh unlucky enough to be caught breaking any of the multitudinous regulations imposed by upperclassmen are liable to trial at the frosh dance by the kangaroo court, a body of senior students which summons offending freshmen and finds them guilty after a "fair" trial.

Sentences usually involve some vigorous and embarrassing activity.

FIGURES CHANGED

Mr. Strachan again pointed out that the Energy Board changed figures of its consultants by omitting from the Columbia costs the benefits of industry and new plants which would come on the Kootenay River.

The consultants' maximum cost for Columbia power—during its first year in 1967—was 7.27 mills, said Mr. Strachan. The Energy Board changed this to 7.69 mills.

A similar figure for the first year of the Peace project is 8.62 mills in both reports.

Bennett Speech Called Cover-Up

Premier Bennett was guilty of "hysterical amateur dramatics" at Prince George in an attempt to cover up the deception of his power policy for B.C., Opposition Leader Robert Strachan charged today.

Mr. Strachan said the premier's claim that Columbia River electricity would cost as much as 8.65 mills was "an other red herring."

He called it: "A figure that for some strange reason escaped the notice of the Energy Board, for they did not draw attention to it in their report, although they did note that in the first year the Peace average unit cost would be 8.62 mills."

HARMFUL

Mr. Strachan was joined by Liberal leader Ray Perrault, who said the premier's speech Saturday "worsened immeasurably" relations between B.C. and Ottawa.

Mr. Perrault said the speech did not answer a single meaningful question about the premier's power policy.

He called for a "summit conference" between B.C. and Ottawa leaders to remove the issue from politics and put it into economics. The public interest demands an end to the "running dogfight" between the two sides, he said.

Mr. Strachan likened the premier's speech to a quote from Emerson's "Conduct of Life": "The louder he talked of his honor the faster we counted our spoons."

COVER-UP

Mr. Strachan commented: "His hysterical amateur dramatics were a cover-up for his inability to answer with facts the unpleasant truth that both the Energy Board and the government had attempted to deceive the people with a biased report in a vain effort to justify a decision to develop the Peace River regardless of its cost, a decision the premier now admits had been made prior to the board's report being received."

Mr. Strachan said the premier did not produce "one shred of genuine evidence" to refute these six points:

1. The British consulting engineers hired by the Energy Board showed that Columbia power would be at least 20 per cent cheaper than Peace power.

2. The Energy Board omitted in its report many figures worked out by these consultants "in an effort to put the Peace River in a more favorable light."

3. The board deliberately left out any calculation of the cost in which would result from any loan or grant toward the Columbia by Ottawa.

4. The consulting engineers' report was "deliberately" withheld by the government from the legislature and the federal government.

5. The board used a different formula for calculating loads of power to be used in the two projects, assuming 60 per cent of Peace power would be used in the Peace River country—a completely unrealistic assumption—designed to make the Peace look better.

6. Real reason for taking over the B.C. Electric was to finance the Peace regardless of its effect on consumer light bills, and to use the tax savings for the Peace, not to cut the rates.

Mr. Strachan again pointed out that the Energy Board changed figures of its consultants by omitting from the Columbia costs the benefits of industry and new plants which would come on the Kootenay River.

The consultants' maximum cost for Columbia power—during its first year in 1967—was 7.27 mills, said Mr. Strachan. The Energy Board changed this to 7.69 mills.

TREES-IN-TUBS PLAN WINS PARKS COMMITTEE BACKING

City parks committee today gave its approval to a suggestion that trees in tubs be used to decorate sidewalks in front of City Hall during 1962 centennial celebrations.

Proposal was raised by city planner Roderick Clark, chairman of the centennial decorations sub-committee.

The idea was raised after parks committee chairman M. H. Mooney said council should adopt a bylaw which would enable downtown merchants to establish trees in tubs on the sidewalks a block at a time.

"Maybe they would do it and maybe they wouldn't, but at least we should make it legally possible," Mr. Mooney said.

Amazing Movements Dressage Show Thrills 1,500

A crowd estimated at close to 1,500 thrilled to the performance of one of the world's top horsewomen and her highly-schooled mare in an exhibition of dressage here Sunday.

Miss Inez Fischer-Credo of Vancouver and Gordina were the feature attraction at Victoria Western Horsemen's Club's fifth annual show at Saanichton fair grounds showing.

Miss Fischer-Credo was judge of the first dressage tests presented at a local horse show, then later, during the main portion of the horsemen's club annual competitions in both English and western riding, gave the exhibition of her "artistry" in the saddle.

With Dr. S. T. R. Sargeant of Vancouver giving a commentary over the public address system, Miss Fischer-Credo put Gordina through a series of movements few of the crowd believed were possible for a horse to do.

Dressage is perfection in riding, and the "ballet" of horsemanship demonstrated round of applause after each movement was completed.

Miss Fischer-Credo, of German Spanish parentage, received most of her horsemanship schooling in her native Germany. After nearly three years in England and Ireland she came to Canada six and one-half years ago to Dr. and Mrs. Sargeant in Vancouver.

She was a member of the German Olympic jumping team in 1952 and has competed in such places as Rome, Nice, Brussels, Rotterdam and Dublin.

Her first love with horses is dressage, although she has competed internationally in jumping, hacking and cross-country racing.

Miss Fischer-Credo's "partner"—Gordina—is a thoroughbred which raced on the Pacific Coast until the age of seven.

She was purchased by Dr. and Mrs. Sargeant and turned over to Miss Fischer-Credo, who has been schooling her the past four years.

Two Suspects Held By Aberdeen Sheriff

A Victoria pleasure cruiser is aground on a Washington beach today after being stolen from the Inner Harbor Saturday morning and sailed more than 200 miles.

Efforts at re-floating the 46-foot Blue Chip at high tide today are unsuccessful, the $10,000 craft may be abandoned as a total wreck on the beach near Aberdeen, Washington.

Two men, now being held by the sheriff at Aberdeen, Wash., are said to have taken Blue Chip from her jetty at the foot of Kingston Street early Saturday.

"There is only fire insurance on her," said Mrs. H. Rollie Robinson, 3340 Wickheim, wife of the owner. "If she can't be floated she will be a total loss."

NEEDED GAS

However, the thieves are thought to have put into a U.S. harbor for gas on their way out through the Juan de Fuca Strait.

Gray's Harbor is a relatively uninhabited bay just east of Aberdeen on the same latitude as Olympia.

At 11.45 p.m. Sunday Air-Sea Search and Rescue in Vancouver reported a boat at Point Grenville, Wash., with two men who replied to questions in a foreign language.

The two men were understood to have been taken into custody by the Gray's Harbor sheriff after they returned to the boat with 50 gallons of gas.

It is not known whether the boat was floating or aground at that time.

HARBOR CRAFT

Painted a light green and white, with maroon trim, Blue Chip was a former Canadian Naval auxiliary vessel used as a harbor craft.

The Robinsons bought her in March and have been fitting her out as a combined fishing and pleasure craft.

They had just returned from one trip and were proposing to embark on another Saturday morning when they discovered the theft.

Mrs. Robinson said even if the U.S. Coast Guard could have refloated the boat earlier, they were prevented from doing so without written consent of the owner.

Her husband, who is at the scene, reported little disturbed on board and nothing damaged except for the engine which had been running on coal oil for some time after the men ran out of gas.

Vancouver Man 'Only Fair' After Car Rolls

A Vancouver man is in only fair condition with a skull fracture today after his car rolled Sunday in an Oak Bay accident.

A passenger, Anthony Lloyd, 25, of 1618 Richmond, was thrown clear and not injured. Bell, who was trapped in the car for a short time before being released by police, also received undetermined internal injuries.

1,216 BOOST IN SCHOOL POPULATION

School population in southern Vancouver Island grew by 1,216 during the past summer.

Total of 28,805 elementary and secondary pupils were reported registered today in the Greater Victoria, Saanich and Sooke school districts.

Greater Victoria reported a tentative enrolment of 23,345, an increase of 976. Saanich school district reported an increase of 70 to 2,790 and Sooke school district reported an increase of some 170 to "slightly more" than 2,600.

Two More Tremors Recorded

Two more earthquakes were recorded Sunday on the seismograph at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory on Little Saanich Mountain, following a sharp shock Friday night.

A fairly severe earthquake recorded at 9 a.m. Sunday was followed by a bigger one close to midnight.

"The midnight shock was perhaps the most severe we have had for some time," an observatory official said. "It could easily have caused broken windows or cracked chimneys near the centre."

The quake was also registered in Portland and appeared to have its centre in Washington State.

The official said there was no evidence of any connection between the three earthquakes registered on Friday and Sunday and the eruption of steam and hot gases from Mount Rainier, dormant 4,310-foot volcano in Washington State.

(Times News Services)

LONDON — A grave crisis faced the whole United Nations organization today in the wake of the death of Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold.

Hammarskjold's death in an air crash in Northern Rhodesia came on the eve of one of the most important annual meetings of the General Assembly.

It plunged the UN into the problem of selecting a successor, with the prospect of bitter disagreement between the Western and Communist blocs.

Members of the Security Council were hurriedly called to a private meeting today to consider the crisis.

The council president, Ambassador Nathan Barnes of Liberia, called the session as UN diplomats expressed deep shock over the secretary-general's death.

Barnes said the meeting would be informal and would be for the purpose of exchanging views on the situation. Delegates made no secret of the deep concern they felt over a threatened East-West deadlock on the choice of a successor.

Apparently there is no successor to Hammarskjold as secretary-general who would be acceptable to the Soviet

NEW YORK (AP)—The French government has told the United States it will not participate in any allied conference with the Soviet Union on Berlin and Germany under present circumstances, the New York Times says today.

It is understood, a Washington dispatch to The Times adds, that this message was conveyed to President Kennedy personally in the presence of the British and West German foreign ministers by French Foreign Minister Maurice Couve de Murville last Friday.

They also say Couve de Murville told the Allied leaders his government believed the Soviet Union is trying to impose its own solution of the German problem on the West.

He said it could be stopped from doing so not by proposing a four-power conference but by warning Moscow any attempt to interfere with the West's rights and obligations to supply the military and civilian population of Berlin would lead to war.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today

there has been no change in the government's policy on power development of the Columbia River.

He was replying in the Commons to Opposition Leader Pearson and asked whether there were any grounds for a reported statement by Premier Bennett of British Columbia that Ottawa would "give in" to the province and permit the export of Columbia River power.

Mr. Diefenbaker said the federal government's policy had been announced on a number of occasions and there was no change in it.

PRINCE GEORGE (CP)—The Chamber of Commerce here has invited Justice Minister Fulton to explain the federal government's stand in the Columbia-Power controversy.

The chamber wired its invitation to Mr. Fulton today after Premier Bennett of British Columbia challenged Mr. Fulton Saturday to "leave the protection of Eastern Canada and come to Prince George and say the same things he has been saying there about the Peace."

Centenary on 'Wheels'

OTTAWA (UPI)—Prime Minister John Diefenbaker moved today to set up the machinery for Canada's centennial celebrations in 1967.

He introduced a resolution calling for the establishment of a 10-man national centennial administration and a 61-member national conference to co-ordinate activities and sound out various views.

He also told the House of Commons he would like to see a "national train" which would travel across the country carrying historical documents.

OTTAWA (CP)—Prime Minister Diefenbaker said today

the death of Dag Hammarskjold is a "tragic day" in the history of efforts to maintain world peace.

There was a gasp on the Commons floor and in the galleries when Mr. Diefenbaker said the United Nations secretary-general is dead.

The prime minister said Mr. Hammarskjold had given his "selfless best" in the preservation of peace.

Opposition Leader Pearson said he had known Mr. Hammarskjold well for many years and had worked closely with him in the UN.

Ireland Anxious

DUBLIN (AP)—Ireland was plunged anew into anxious foreboding today at reports that Irish troops had been overwhelmed in Katanga.

The report, flashed to Dublin from Leopoldville Sunday night, dashed the rejoicing that set in earlier Sunday after a government announcement said it had been informed that a truce had been arranged in Jadotville and that Irish casualties were light.

In Peace Bid

NDOLA, Northern Rhodesia (Reuters)—United Nations Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold today was found dead in the wreckage of a chartered DC-6B airliner which was rocked by a series of explosions before it crashed Sunday night into a woods 7½ miles from here.

American Sgt. Harold Julian, a UN security guard, who was the sole survivor among the 14 passengers and crew, said there was an explosion aboard the plane just after the secretary-general changed his mind about landing here and told the pilot to alter course for another destination.

Julian, who was critically injured, said the first explosion was followed by a series of smaller blasts.

Most of those who died were burned beyond recognition, but Hammarskjold's body was scarcely marked. A rescue worker said his body bore only "a small wound in the neck" and that he was wearing his identity tag.

Canadian diplomats in New York said their information from the UN was that the crash was accidental; there was no early indication of sabotage.

Owners of the plane said they are trying to find out whether the DC-6B may have been shot down by a jet fighter from Katanga.

Officials of the Swedish Trans Air Company, charter operators who supplied the four-engined plane for the UN secretary-general, said this seemed a possibility. There was no confirmation from any source.

JETS ACTIVE

Jet fighters of President Moise Tshombe's Katanga air force have been active in the clashes between UN troops and Katangan forces opposing them.

The unarmed plane was damaged by machine-gun fire as it took off from the airport at Elisabethville Friday, but got aloft on three engines and landed safely at Leopoldville. There one engine was replaced and the others were checked for damage from stray bullets.

In New York, UN sources said a Canadian member of the secretary-general's staff, Alice Lalonde of Montreal, was aboard the plane.

The wreckage of the plane was still smouldering when the rescue party reached it. It appeared to have hit the ground at high speed after crashing through tree-tops.

The plane shattered into several pieces on impact. Two of the plane's four engines were ripped out of the fuselage.

OTTAWA POWER POLICY CALLOUS—BENNETT

'B.C. Won't Stand for Sellout'

(See Also Page 17)

Premier Bennett denounced the Columbia River power treaty and federal Justice Minister E. Davie Fulton in a fiery speech at Prince George Saturday night.

In a speech to the convention of the Associated Boards of Trade of B.C., he said the treaty with the U.S. is "not good enough" but "can be made to work" if B.C. is allowed to sell all its downstream benefits to pay for construction of the three big dams,

He challenged Mr. Fulton's claim that these benefits if returned to B.C. would be the cheapest of all power.

Mr. Fulton has said this power will cost 3.77 mills; Mr. Bennett claimed it would cost an average of 6.35 mills, and as much as 8.65 mills during the project's first year.

In a personal attack on the justice minister, the premier said Mr. Fulton was trying to block full economic development of B.C. "for the honor of his own grandiose political image."

"He will allow nothing to interfere with his own lust for political back-slapping," said Mr. Bennett.

Mr. Fulton hinted in Ottawa last week that the federal government was considering ways to block the Peace River power project, which has already been launched by the new publicly-owned B.C. Electric.

This might be done under the federal Navigable Waters Protection Act, he suggested. Replied Mr. Bennett: "I say to every body in Canada in all seriousness that this may rank as the most frivolous, destructive statement ever made in Canada's long political history."
